Most of our textbooks publish with accompanying online resources. The resources are closely linked to the textbook, written by (or in conjunction with) our authors. Designed to enhance the learning experience and save you time, these materials enable students to:

- get added value from their textbook;
- continue learning outside of timetabled sessions;
- stay updated and interact with the subject.
Dashboard is an online learning and assessment platform that delivers a simple, informative and textbook-specific experience for you and your students.

Simple  Informative  Mobile

Designed to be mastered in under 15 minutes  Quality content designed to match your OUP text  Designed to be used on the go

Featuring a streamlined interface that connects users with the functions needed most frequently, Dashboard simplifies the learning experience to save time and put student progress first, while offering quality content and the tools to track their progress in an intuitive, web-based environment.

Find out more - contact your campus representative today and they will be happy to set you up with demo access to the platform, and to visit you at a convenient time to explore how Dashboard can best be employed for your course: www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk/findyourrep

Since 2005, Oxford University Press has run a variety of student panels for undergraduate students in the UK and Europe. This has helped us better understand students’ learning needs, and has helped us gather their views and opinions so we can continue to make our textbooks as student-focused as we can.

With over 500 students taking part in our three social science panels - business, economics, and politics – we are able to gather a wealth of data which enables us to tailor pedagogical features, learning resources, and jacket covers. By better meeting student needs, we hope to improve student engagement with our textbooks, so that when you come to teach your students in the classroom, you are able to expand on their understanding and stimulate further critical thinking.

We reward our panellists with credits that can be used to spend on OUP books.

For more information on these titles visit www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk
1. Oxford contacts members of the student panel to complete an online survey about a chapter or book review, design feature, pedagogy, or jacket images.

2. The editorial team analyse the results and alter the development of the textbook in response to the student feedback.

3. As a result, students have a better learning experience and engage with their subject matter.

Our promise to you

Oxford University Press has a team of dedicated campus representatives who visit institutions across the UK, Europe and Middle East.

They are committed to providing a high level of service and support; from ensuring your conversations with them are constructive and helpful, to making sure the books your students need are delivered to the bookshops on time.

They will:

- consult with you to establish your requirements;
- provide you with relevant materials in the right format for you;
- ensure you are familiar with and have access to any accompanying online resources;
- offer live demonstrations of online resources to your students, at your invitation;
- provide you with the highest quality materials for your teaching needs;
- package textbooks together to ensure the best value for your students and department.

We don’t believe you’ll receive a better level of ongoing support from any other publisher.

Contact your campus representative at any time using the details opposite, or go online to find out who calls at your institution.
