Welcome to our 2020

As we enter a new decade it’s exciting to think how our publishing might advance over the next ten years. After all, the decade just ended saw a fair amount of developments and milestones.

We introduced Law Trove as thoughts increasingly turned to digital provision; we celebrated the 30 year anniversary of Blackstone’s Statutes with many of the editors who’ve been with the series from the beginning; and we saw the publication of dozens of new titles, some of which are now market leaders in their subject areas.

Many of these achievements owe their success to your support; whether that’s through writing or reviewing for us, adopting an OUP product, or getting involved with our goodwill initiatives. So thank you.

No doubt there’ll be plenty to look forward to over the next ten years as publishing and legal education continue to modernize. However, I hope some things won’t change.

I hope we’ll maintain our presence on campus, talking and listening to you, and finding out about your priorities and challenges. And I hope we’ll continue to establish and maintain productive relationships with you and your institutions; because it’s only by helping you achieve your goals that we can achieve our own.

Digital Publishing:
Finding formats to fit

Oxford is the number one legal education publisher with the broadest and deepest selection of textbooks and you’ll find our law resources in the digital space, presented in the formats that best suit your teaching methods.

Law Trove: our flagship website contains subject collections of our textbooks. Intuitive functionality, navigation, and features enhance the learning experience; whilst access to a range of titles encourages wider reading. Email lawtrove@oup.com

Ebooks: all our law textbooks now publish simultaneously in print and as ebooks. They typically offer a mobile experience with the convenience of anywhere, anytime access.

Enhanced ebooks: taking the ebook format further our enhanced ebooks offer a fully immersive learning experience, packed with self-assessment activities and multi-media content.

Online study tools: most of our textbooks are accompanied by resources to add value. Hyperlinked or embedded in our ebooks, or accessed on their own site when used alongside print copies, these resources offer students self-testing tools, flashcards, updates, videos, and study advice.

Titles available in this format for 2020 are: Virgo: Principles of Equity & Trusts 4e (p8); Bevan: Land Law 2e (p15); Elliott & Thomas: Public Law 4e (p16); Wilson et al: English Legal System 4e (p17)

All our digital resources are available for students to purchase, or institutions to buy-in.

Oxford University Press is the only publisher to offer legal resources that take students from an undergraduate (or equivalent) course to their professional career and beyond. As such we are uniquely placed to offer a suite of resources that will support law teaching as it evolves in response to the introduction of the Solicitors Qualifying Examination (SQE). We’re currently expanding our law list to cater for the changes brought about by the SQE.

Our SQE plans

Our undergraduate response – the Principles to Practice series: textbooks in the core areas of the curriculum which respond to the more practical nature of teaching.

Our response for specific SQE preparation – a series of manuals structured around the SQE assessment criteria. A core part of this offering will be a sophisticated set of online MCQs, designed for use alongside the manual content. The questions are written by experts in assessment and question writing, and mirror the style and rigour of the type used in the SQE I assessment. The manuals and questions will be offered in the formats that best suit teachers and learners.

Our provision for SQE II preparation – what we provide here will largely be informed by our ongoing research with the market and law firms.

For more details on our plans, to see our sample MCQs and other resources as they develop, or to get involved with reviewing, please visit www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk/law/sqe and ensure you are subscribed to receive updates from us.
Our campus support

Oxford University Press has a team of dedicated representatives who visit institutions across Europe, and are trained to offer an unbeatable service.

We can offer more content than any other publisher, which means the choice of what to select for your course can seem challenging; but our team is happy to help you select the best resources as well as the delivery method and format that suits both you and your students.

Contact your representative at any time and find out for yourself how they can help you deliver your teaching. They look forward to working with you.
