Our Time Has Come
How India is Making Its Place in the World
Alyssa Ayres, Council on Foreign Relations
- First book in twelve years to examine how India envisions its role in the world
- Covers the key debates in 21st-century India: growth versus inclusion, trade and foreign investment, and strategic autonomy
- Considers how India’s evolution in business and trade affects the US
Long plagued by poverty, India’s recent economic growth has vaulted it into the ranks of the world’s emerging powers—but what kind of power it wants to be remains a mystery. Cautious Superpower explains why India behaves the way it does, and the role it is likely to play globally as its prominence grows.

Fragile Superpower
SECOND EDITION
Susan L. Shirk, University of California
Susan L. Shirk, a former Deputy Assistant Secretary of State responsible for China, finds that China’s real danger lies not in its astonishing growth, but in the deep insecurity of its leaders. China’s leaders face a troubling paradox: the more developed and prosperous the country becomes, the more insecure and threatened they feel. The second edition features two new chapters, including a discussion of Tibet and Xinjiang and Shirk’s assessment of the new assertive China.

Will China’s Rise Be Peaceful?
Edited by Asle Toje, Norwegian Nobel Institute
As the rest of the world worries about China’s economic prospects, Will China’s Rise be Peaceful? worries about the effect a more powerful China will have on international peace and stability. Bringing together the work of seasoned experts and younger scholars, this volume offers an inclusive examination of the effects of historical patterns – whether interrupted or intact – by the rise of China. The authors argue that the most populous nation on the globe – and its second largest economy – may continue to rise peacefully, but that powerful internal and external factors work against this.

Democracy in the Woods
Environmental Conservation and Social Justice in India, Tanzania, and Mexico
Prakash Kashwan, University of Connecticut
• Presents a unique approach to answering questions about environmental protection and social justice by considering the role of land rights
• Examines the role of democracy in negotiating the contradictions between environmental protection and social justice goals
• The first comparative study to systematically examine the effects of contemporary political processes on the outcomes of institutional change, while accounting for the effects of colonial and post-colonial legacies
Democracy in the Woods examines the trajectories of forest and land rights in India, Tanzania, and Mexico to explain how societies negotiate the tensions between environmental protection and social justice. It shows that the social consequences of environmental protection depend, almost entirely, on political intermediation of competing claims to environmental resources.

Election Watchdogs
Transparency, Accountability and Integrity
Edited by Pippa Norris, Harvard University, and Alessandro Nai, University of Amsterdam
- Presents cutting-edge research in an accessible manner
- Provides an integrated theoretical framework and new evidence for the study of electoral governance by focusing on the role of the international community, core state institutions, and civil society actors in promoting transparency, accountability and integrity
- Evaluates the quality of elections through diverse cases and large scale comparative studies
Recent years have seen growing concern about vote fraud, election-rigging, and maladministration. When problems come to light, however, is anyone held to account and are effective remedies implemented? This volume collects essays from international experts who compare alternative approaches and apply these methods to evaluate the quality of elections in several areas, including the United States, Sub-Saharan Africa, and Latin America. Election Watchdogs: Transparency, Accountability and Integrity presents new insights into the importance of diverse actors who promote electoral transparency, accountability, and ultimately the integrity of electoral governance.

Unusually Cruel
Prisons, Punishment, and the Real American Exceptionalism
Marc Morjé Howard, Georgetown University
- Conducts a comparative study of major Western prison systems to highlight distinctions between the US and other advanced, industrial democracies
- Engaging and dynamic assessment of American incarceration that not only critiques the current structure but also provides possible solutions
- Uses a new methodology to assess the overall efficacy of carceral punishment
In Unusually Cruel, Mark Morjé Howard shows how far outside the norm – and how different from systems in other advanced, industrial democracies – US prisons are.

The Participation Gap
Social Status and Political Inequality
Russell J. Dalton, University of California, Irvine
- Provides a comprehensive study of political participation across contemporary democracies
- Focuses on the central theoretical question of who participates and biases in participation and demonstrates the growing social inequality in political participation
- Examines generational patterns of participation with a special focus on Millennials
This volume examines the changing patterns of political participation over the past quarter of a century and the ways they have altered the relationship between citizens and their government. It documents the growing participation gap in contemporary democracies and proposes a variety of methods to narrow the gap.

Deadly Justice
A Statistical Portrait of the Death Penalty
Frank Baumgartner, Marty Davidson, Kaneesha Johnson, Arvind Krishnamurthy and Colin Wilson, all at University of North Carolina
Forty years and 1,400 executions after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the death penalty unconstitutional, eminent political scientist Frank Baumgartner and a team of younger scholars have collaborated to assess the empirical record and provide a definitive account of how the death penalty has been implemented. A Statistical Portrait of the Death Penalty shows that all the flaws that caused the Supreme Court to invalidate the death penalty in 1972 remain and indeed that new problems have arisen. Far from ‘perfecting the mechanism’ of death, the modern system has failed.

The Europeisation of Conflict Resolution
Regional Integration and Conflicts from the 1950s to the 21st Century
Boyka Stefanova, University of Texas at San Antonio
This book is about the EU’s role in conflict resolution and reconciliation in Europe.
Ever since it was implemented as a political project of the post-World War II reality in Western Europe, European integration has been credited with performing conflict resolution functions. It allegedly transformed the long-standing adversarial relationship between France and Germany into a strategic partnership. Conflict in Western Europe became obsolete. The end of the Cold War further reinforced its role as a regional peace project.

Liberalism in Illiberal States
Ideas and Economic Adjustment in Contemporary Europe
Mark I. Vail. Tulane University
Liberalism in Illiberal States analyzes developments in fiscal policy and state investment, labor-market policy and related social policies, and finance, three areas that have been central to the evolving relationship between state and market in advanced industrial countries during the contemporary era of transnational neoliberalism. It shows that all three have rejected neoliberal strategies and preserved non-market arrangements and robust roles for public authority and concludes that ideas have been powerful drivers of adjustment for economically illiberal states.

The Biopolitics of Gender

Jemima Repo, Newcastle University

This book theorizes the idea of gender itself as an apparatus of power developed to reproduce life and labor. From its invention in 1950s psychiatry to its appropriation by feminism, demography and public policy, the book examines how gender has been deployed to optimize production and reproduction over the past sixty years.

The American Convention on Human Rights
Essential Rights
Thomas M. Antkowiak, Seattle University and Alejandro González, University of Washington
This book offers a thorough, critical, and accessible analysis of the American Convention on Human Rights which is the main human rights treaty of the Americas. The authors closely review the jurisprudence and the binding judgments of the two institutions charged with interpreting the Convention: The Inter-American Court of Human Rights and The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights. They focus on the rights most developed by the Court and Commission, namely the rights to equality, life, humane treatment, personal liberty, property, due process and judicial protection, as well as the freedom of expression and reparations. They examine the case law with a victim-centered lens while identifying key jurisprudential developments, discussing critical areas that lack consistency and rigor, and proposing alternative conceptual approaches.

Stemming the Tide

Human Rights and Water Policy in a Neoliberal World

Madeline Baer, San Diego State University

When privatization of public services swept the developing world in the 1990s, it was part of a seemingly unstoppable tide of neoliberal reforms aimed at reducing the role of the state and reorienting economies toward market-led policymaking. Consequently, water privatization sparked a fierce debate over whether public services should be owned and managed by private corporations, and gave rise to a water justice movement that redefined water services as basic human rights. Stemming the Tide explores how the human right to water and sanitation is fulfilled in different contexts, whether neoliberal policies like privatization pose a threat to the right to water, and whether rights fulfillment leads to meaningful social change.

Gender and Women’s Issues across North-South Divides
Sara de Jong, Open University
This book explores the reflections of women in the global North whose ‘doing good’ work is aimed at improving conditions for other women. Drawing on interviews with women NGO workers in seven different European countries about their experiences and perspectives on working on gendered issues affecting women in the global South, this book looks at the ways in which the work they do is embedded in power structures and inequalities.

Equal Opportunity Peacekeeping
Women, Peace, and Security in Post-Conflict States
Sabrina Karim, and Kyle Beardsley, Duke University
Despite reforms that have realized major improvements, gender power imbalances within and through peacekeeping missions continue to pose major challenges. Sabrina Karim and Kyle Beardsley explore how increasing the representation of women, particularly through an ‘equal opportunity’ framework, will help peacekeeping operations become more of a vehicle for gender equality globally.

Gender, UN Peacebuilding, and the Politics of Space
Locating Legitimacy
Laura J Shepherd, University of New South Wales
The United Nations Peacebuilding Commission (UNPBC) was established in December 2005 to develop outlines of best practice in post-conflict reconstruction, and to secure the political and material resources necessary to assist states in transition from conflict to peacetime. However, a 2010 review found that the hopes of the UN peacebuilding architecture had yet to be realized. Laura J. Shepherd draws upon original fieldwork that she conducted with the UNPBC to argue that the spatial politics of peacebuilding are not only gendered – such that they further marginalize and disadvantage indigenous populations in peacebuilding activities – but also perpetuate hierarchies that privilege the international over the domestic realms.

Regulating the Polluters
Markets and Strategies for Protecting the Global Environment
Alexander Ovodenko
US Department of Energy

Why have national governments created different international rules and institutions to address global environmental issues? Alexander Ovodenko argues that this variation can be explained by looking to a dynamic that has been thus far downplayed by the literature on global environmental governance: the structures of industries regulated by environmental rules. Regulating the Polluters inverts the literature on regulatory capture and collective action by presenting empirical evidence of the irony of market power in global environmental politics.

The Myth of International Order
Why Weak States Persist and Alternatives to the State Faded Away
Arjun Chowdhury. University of British Columbia
This ambitious book takes on a fundamental political puzzle: most states in the international system are ‘weak’ states, states unable to monopolize violence or provide public goods, and yet the nation-state remains the primary organizational form for world politics. In addressing this, Arjun Chowdhury shows why states everywhere face popular dissatisfaction with their performance, and why addressing this dissatisfaction – through institutional alternatives to the state like the European Union, or through higher taxation – is so difficult.

Coercion
The Power to Hurt in International Politics
Edited by Kelly Greenhill. Tufts University, and Peter Krause, Boston College
In Coercion, leading international relations scholars Kelly M. Greenhill and Peter Krause have gathered together an eminent cast of contributors to produce what promises to be a field-shaping work on one of IR’s most essential subjects: coercion, whether in the form of compellence, deterrence, or a mix of the two. The volume moves beyond these traditional premises and examines the critical issue of coercion in the 21st century, capturing fresh theoretical and policy relevant developments and drawing upon data and cases from across time and around the globe.

Targeted Development
Industrialized Country Strategy in a Globalized World
Sarah Bermeo. Duke University
As industrialized countries find it increasingly difficult to insulate themselves from residual impacts associated with underdevelopment abroad, they now pursue a strategy of ‘targeted development,’ in which they fund and advocate for development projects when and where it serves their own self-interests. Targeted Development examines this strategy in areas such as foreign aid, trade agreements, and climate finance.

Nasser’s Blessed Movement

Egypt’s Free Officers and the July Revolution With a New Introduction

Joel Gordon, University of Arkansas

This essential book explores the early years of military rule following the Free Officers’ coup of 1952. Enriched by interviews with actors in and observers of the events, Nasser’s Blessed Movement shows how the officers’ belief in a quick reformation by force was transformed into a vital, long-term process that changed the face of Egypt. Joel Gordon analyzes the goals, programs, successes, and failures of the young regime, providing the most comprehensive account of the Egyptian revolution to date.

Arguing Islam after the Revival of Arab Politics

Nathan J. Brown, The George Washington University

- Takes a realist’s view and does not speculate about the democratic future of the Middle East region
- Offers a very promising critique of the way in which liberal theorists and policymakers talk about politics in the Middle East

Arguing Islam after the Revival of Arab Politics analyzes the politics of religion in the Arab world after the emergence of new public spheres over the past few decades. The book examines those spheres as they really are, not measuring them against any ideal of democratic deliberation.

Contemporary Turkey in Conflict

Ethnicity, Islam and Politics

Tahir Abbas, Royal United Services Institute in London

New perspectives on ethnic relations, Islam and neoliberalism have emerged in Turkey since the rise of the Justice and Development Party (AKP) in 2002. Placing the period within its historical and contemporary context, Tahir Abbas argues that what it is to be ethnically, religiously and culturally Turkish has been transformed. He explores how issues of political trust, social capital and intolerance towards minorities have characterised Turkey in the early years of the 21st-century. He shows how a radical neoliberal economic and conservative outlook has materialised, leading to a clash over the religious, political and cultural direction of Turkey.

The Oslo Accords

A Critical Assessment

Petter Bauck, Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation, Mohammed Omer, Desmond Tutu, and Össur Skarphéðinsson

More than twenty years have passed since Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization concluded the Oslo Accords, or Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements for Palestine. It was declared ‘a political breakthrough of immense importance.’ Through a number of essays written by renowned scholars and practitioners, the years since the Oslo Accords are scrutinized from a wide range of perspectives. Did the agreement have a reasonable chance of success? What went wrong, causing the treaty to derail and delay a real, workable solution? What are the recommendations today to show a way forward for the Israelis and the Palestinians?

The January 2011 Egyptian uprising had dramatic, far-reaching effects on cultural production in Egypt. It sparked new developments and transformations reaching effects on cultural production in Egypt. The political struggles that predated 2011, and yet how this cultural resurgence had its roots in power and authority that took place after the uprising piece with the change in people’s relationship to production in Egypt since January 2011. They show in content and genre and laid open challenge to the cultural production in Egypt. This book argues that Internet diffusion and use in the Middle East enables meaningful micro-changes in citizens’ lives, even in states where no Arab Spring revolution occurred. Using ethnographic evidence and taking a comparative perspective, it presents a grass roots look at how new media use fits into the practice of everyday life.

Public Space and Revolt
On the Occasion of Tahrir Square 2011
Sherene Seikaly and Elena Tzelepis
When the pro-democracy protests broke out in Egypt in January 2011, a remarkable sense of non-violent collectivity emerged in the public spaces of the country and beyond. Tahrir Square became the epicenter of a revolution and a public space of civic gathering. With this seismic event as its starting point, Public Space and Revolt stages a theoretical discussion on the definitions and redefinitions of the political-including political struggle, political subjectivity, political space, political actors, political responsibility—and their connections with notions of social justice, public gathering, and moral responsibility.

Contesting the Repressive State
Why Ordinary Egyptians Protested During the Arab Spring
Kira D. Jumet, Hamilton College
For years prior to the Arab Spring, opposition activists in Egypt organized protests with limited success. So why and how did thousands of Egyptian citizens suddenly take to the streets against the Mubarak regime in January 2011? Contesting the Repressive State not only answers this question, but asks specifically why and how people who are not part of political movements choose to engage or not engage in anti-government protest under repressive regimes. Ultimately, Kira D. Jumet explores how social media, violent government repression, changes in political opportunities, and the military influenced individual decisions to protest or not protest.

The New Minority White Working Class Politics in an Age of Immigration and Inequality Justin Gest, George Mason University’s Schar School of Policy and Government

• The first book to present a comprehensive cross-national analysis of white working class alienation in the United Kingdom and the United States
• Draws extensively from in-depth interviews with white working class men and women in Dagenham, England and Youngstown, Ohio
• Survey research shows that Radical Right support is driven by a sense of deprivation – the loss of social status and political importance

In this daring and insightful book, Justin Gest studies white working class people’s attitudes and political behavior in the United States and Britain. Based on ethnographies and original surveys, the book offers a rich, nuanced and generalizable account of the marginality sensed by one of society’s most misunderstood groups.

POLITICAL BEHAVIOUR

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Uninformed Why People Seem to Know So Little about Politics and What We Can Do about It Arthur Lupia, University of Michigan

• Provides the new ways to address the deep-rooted problem of an uninformed electorate
• Reshapes our understanding of how voters think and learn
• An essential work for anyone or any organization trying to educate the public about important issues

Voter ignorance is notorious and well-documented, but merely throwing more facts at voters is not enough. In this capstone work, eminent political scientist Arthur Lupia synthesizes years of work with scientists and educators in all arenas to figure out how to increase issue competence among voters.

The Citizen Marketer

Joel Penney, Montclair State University

• Offers a humanized and accessible account of digital activism through first-hand testimony from everyday citizens
• The first volume to explore the relationship between pre-digital participatory media practices and contemporary digital culture
• Advances a controversial thesis and a new theoretical concept – the citizen marketer

The Citizen Marketer explores how everyday people circulate political media messages in the hopes of persuading peers and shaping the public mind. By examining the logics behind spreading political memes, hashtags, and more, Joel Penney charts the promises of citizen marketing for expanding democratic participation, as well as the risks that these practices pose for polarization, the trivialization of issues, and control and manipulation by elites.

Friction

How Conflict Radicals Them and Us

REVISED AND EXPANDED EDITION

Clark McCauley, Bryn Mawr College, and Sophia Moskalenko, National Consortium for the Study of Terrorism and Responses to Terrorism

In this ground-breaking and important book, Clark McCauley and Sophia Moskalenko identify twelve mechanisms of political radicalization that can move individuals, groups, and the masses to increased sympathy and support for political violence, drawing on wide-ranging case histories to show striking parallels between 1800s anti-czarist terrorism, 1970s anti-war terrorism, and 21st century jihadist terrorism.

The Death of Expertise

The Campaign Against Established Knowledge and Why it Matters

Tom Nichols, US Naval War College

From the anti-vaccination movement to citizen blogging to uninformed attacks on GMOs, the nation has witnessed a surge in intellectual egalitarianism. While increased access to information undoubtedly brings some societal benefits, the leap to enlightenment that millions of lightly educated people believe they make after scouring WebMD or Wikipedia undermines established sources of knowledge.

An Unlikely Audience

Al Jazeera’s Struggle in America

William Youmans, School of Media and Public Affairs, George Washington University

• Re-directs attention to the localized geographies of new media production, emphasizing the overlooked importance of place in the networked age
• A novel degree of access to the Al Jazeera news organization over a five year period makes for unrivalled scholarship on the company
• Provides a definitive account of Al Jazeera’s globalization to the US through its English, America and AJ+ channels, from 2006 to 2016

No one could deny the impressive ambition of Al Jazeera English when it attempted, in 2013, to infiltrate the United States news market and become the first southern-global network to court a northern-global audience. In Al Jazeera in the United States, William Youmans explains what the seeming failure of the network’s decade-long American enterprise reveals about the nature of global news, disputing long-held assumptions about global media in the digital age.

Dancing with the Devil

The Political Economy of Privatization in China

Yi-min Lin, Hong Kong University of Science and Technology

• Casts new light on China’s economic transformation
• Offers a story about the demise of communism through self-destruction rather than political revolution
• Develops a dialogue between country-specific explanations and broader theories of institutional change

Dancing with the Devil explains why public ownership has declined in post-Mao China. Focusing on the behavior of political actors under changing incentives and constraints, the book illustrates how growing concerns about jobs and revenue have forced the country’s communist rulers to change their policies toward private capital.

Globalization and Labour Reforms

The Politics of Interest Groups and Partisan Governments
Zaad Mahmood, Presidency University

This book analyses labour market reforms in India under conditions of globalization. Through a study of subnational variations in labour markets, the book emphasizes on the continued relevance of politics in shaping public policy, despite the structural-institutional constraints attributed to globalization and policy convergence. It shows that the role of partisan governments, dynamics of interest group negotiations, and party competition in the states can largely influence public policy decisions for domestic socio-economic interests.

Fractured Tales: Invisibles in Indian Democracy
Badri Narayan, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi
This book focuses on the voiceless and invisible Dalit castes who have been left out in the 60 years of state led Indian democracy. This work aims to give voice to the most marginalized amongst the Dalit population who fall outside the purview of the discourse of democracy. It focuses on the process of ongoing inclusion of Dalits in the democratic sphere and will try to understand the dialectics of contradiction involved in the democratic processes in post-colonial India.

Edited by Kristina Spohr, London School of Economics, and David Reynolds, Cambridge University
This major multinational study, based on archives from both sides of the ‘Iron Curtain’, seeks to understand the role played by international summitry in the dénouement of the Cold War, examining the thoughts and actions of key leaders and addressing international relations issues that still shape the world today.

Great Strategic Rivalries: From the Classical World to the Cold War
James Lacey, Marine Corps War College
The first work covering a key element of the strategic relationship between states from ancient history to the late 20th century, Great Strategic Rivalries fills a major gap in the historiography of state relations.

NEW EDITION
Malcolm X at Oxford Union
Racial Politics in a Global Era
Saladin Ambar, Lehigh University
- The first book to place the Oxford Address in the canon of great civil rights speeches of the 20th Century
- Makes the case that Malcolm X was seeking to organize a black human rights movement not only in America, the Middle East, or Africa, but in cities such as Paris, London, and Amsterdam as well
- Shows Malcolm X moving beyond Black Nationalism, while at the same time rejecting the notion of ‘color-blindness’
Malcolm X at Oxford Union tells one of the great unknown stories from the Civil Rights era, capturing the powerful oratorical gifts of Malcolm X and the changing world of racial politics – all from the vantage point of an old debate hall on the campus of Oxford in 1964. Singapore: Unlikely Power
John Curtis Perry, Tufts University
- Tracks the meteoric rise of Singapore to the status of first-world dynamo in just three decades
- Shows how longtime leader Lee Kuan Yew adopted a resolutely pragmatic approach to economic development rather than following any one fashionable ideology
- Offers an accessible, comprehensive, and colorful overview of a city-state that has perfected one of the world’s most influential political-economic models
In Singapore: Unlikely Power, John Perry provides an evenhanded and authoritative history of the island nation that ranges from its Malay origins to the present day. Singapore is one of the wealthiest and best educated countries in the world, while also having one of the highest global capital punishment rates per-capita. Singapore is a democracy, but serves as a model regime for states that aim develop rapidly but are relatively unconcerned with freedom or democratic practices.

Intelligence Success and Failure
The Human Factor
Uri Bar-Joseph, University of Haifa, and Rose McDermott, Professor of Political Science, Brown University
- Develops a theory about strategic surprise based on psychological tendencies in central decision makers
- Investigates strategic success as well as failure
- Provides access to new sources and offers previously unpublished information for this field

Intelligence Success and Failure presents a new theory in the study of strategic surprise that claims the key explanation for warning failure is not unintentional action, but rather, motivated biases in key intelligence and central leaders that null any sense of doubt prior to surprise attacks.

Curtain of Lies
The Battle over Truth in Stalinist Eastern Europe
Melissa Feinberg
Curtain of Lies tells the story of the struggle to define the truth of Eastern Europe between 1948 and 1956. It examines how actors on both sides of the Iron Curtain tried to create knowledge about Eastern Europe, and thus helped solidify the battle lines of the Cold War.

Apocalypse and Expression in Foucault, Derrida and Deleuze
Leonard Lawlor, Pennsylvania State University

Drawing on a career-long exploration of 1960s French philosophy, Leonard Lawlor seeks a solution to ‘the problem of the worst violence’. The worst violence is the reaction of total apocalypse without remainder; it is the reaction of complete negation and death; it is nihilism. Lawlor argues that it is not just transcendental violence that must be minimised: all violence must itself be reduced to its lowest level. He offers new ways of speaking to best achieve the least violence, which he creatively appropriates from Foucault, Derrida and Deleuze and Guattari as ‘speaking-freely’, ‘speaking-distantly’ and ‘speaking-in-tongues’.

Derrida’s Secret
Perjury, Testimony, Oath
Charles Barbour, University of Western Sydney

The Snowden Affair, Wikileaks, the ‘lone wolf’ terrorist, Clinton’s private email account – the secret is arguably the central element of our contemporary political experience. Now, Charles Barbour looks at the basic ontological question ‘what is a secret?’ Organised as a reflection on Jacques Derrida’s later writings on secrecy, four chapters each look at a separate problematic: society and the oath, literature and testimony, philosophy and deception, and time and death.

Just Enough
Sufficiency As a Demand of Justice
Liam Shields, University of Manchester

Liam Shields systematically clarifies and defends the political philosophy of Sufficientarianism, which insists that securing enough of some things, such as food, healthcare and education, is a crucial demand of justice. He engages in practical debates about critical issues such as child-rearing and global justice, to show how it affects our daily lives.

Climate Change and Neoliberal Governance
Brian Elliott, Portland State University

Brian Elliott persuasively argues that climate change is not a natural phenomenon but a political phenomenon: a symptom of neoliberal governance. This explains why environmental concern has increasingly been framed as a consumer responsibility issue rather than as a matter of structural social-political transformation.

POLITICAL THEORY

Republic of Equals
Predistribution and Property-Owning Democracy
Alan Thomas, University of York
This first book-length study of property-owning democracy argues that a society in which capital is universally accessible to all citizens uniquely meets the demands of justice. It defends a renovated form of capitalism in which the free market is no longer a threat to social democratic values, but is potentially convergent with them.

Ordinary Democracy
Sovereignty and Citizenship Beyond the Neoliberal Impasse
Ali Aslam, Mount Holyoke College
Written with and for citizens who feel overwhelmed by political and economic forces outside of their control, Ordinary Democracy makes a compelling argument for the adequacy of democratic politics to address the challenges associated with neoliberalism and the growth of emergency politics.

International Law and Empire
Historical Explorations
Edited by Martti Koskenniemi, Walter Rech, and Manuel Jiménez Fonseca, all at University of Helsinki
By examining the relationship between international law and empire from early modernity to the present, this volume improves current understandings of the way international legal institutions, practices, and narratives have shaped imperial ideas about and structures of world governance.

Ethics and Cyber Warfare
The Quest for Responsible Security in the Age of Digital Warfare
George Lucas, John J. Reilly Center for Science, Technology & Values at Notre Dame University
‘State sponsored hacktivism’ constitutes a wholly new alternative to conventional armed conflict. This book explores the ethical and legal dimensions of this ‘soft’ mode of warfare grounded in a broad revisionist approach to military ethics and ‘just war theory’ that results in a new code of ethics for today’s ‘cyber warriors.’

To Reform the World
International Organizations and the Making of Modern States
Guy Fiti Sinclair, Victoria University of Wellington Law School
This book examines the influence of international organizations since the First World War, and explores how they have acted on behalf of, and at times instead of, states in the international arena. The International Labour Organization, the United Nations, and the World Bank are examined in depth.

Exit Left
Markets and Mobility in Republican Thought
Robert S. Taylor, University of California, Davis
This book advances an economic model of contemporary republicanism that is ideologically centre-left.

MacCormack, Anglia Ruskin University

These 14 essays apply Deleuze’s work to analysing television, film, music, art, drunkenness, mourning, virtual technology, protest, arrest, animal rights and abolition. Each chapter questions the premise of the animal and critiques the centrality of the human.

Political Utopias
Contemporary Debates
Edited by Michael Weber, Bowling Green State University, and Kevin Vallier, Bowling Green
State University

Contemporary political philosophers disagree about whether theories of justice should be utopian or realistic. Contributors to this volume largely deny that the choice between realism and ideaism is binary. Their contributions represent a continuum between realism and ideaism that best gives the contemporary state of the debate.

A Defense of Rule
Origins of Political Thought in Greece and India
Stuart Gray, Washington and Lee University

While political theorists tend to regard rule as a necessary evil, this book aims to explain how rule need not be understood as anathema to political life. By looking at some of the earliest traditions of political thought, Stuart Gray establishes a new analytic approach to understanding fundamental political ideas of other cultures and time periods, and he uses this comparative analysis to add depth to our understanding of rule.

CRITICAL CONNECTIONS

Balibar and the Citizen Subject
Edited by Warren Montag, Occidental College, and Hanan Elsayed, Occidental College
The 12 essays provide an overview of Balibar’s work after his collaboration with Althusser. They explain and expand his framework; in particular, by restoring Arabic and Islamic thought to the conversation on the citizen subject. The collection includes two previously untranslated essays by Balibar himself on Carl Schmitt and Thomas Hobbes.

- Provides an original account, unifying the history of political thought and contemporary disputes in political philosophy, grounding new questions in old concerns
- Connects normative political theory to social science and social theory about the dynamics of group life, the sources of social order, and the workings of state power

This book offers an original account of the history of liberal thought, one grounded in an institutional history of medieval pluralism and the early modern rationalizing state, and explores the deep tensions that liberal political thought rests upon.

Montaigne and the Tolerance of Politics
Douglas I. Thompson, University of South Carolina
Montaigne and the Tolerance of Politics argues for toleration as a practice of negotiation, looking to a philosopher not usually considered political: Michel de Montaigne. Douglas I. Thompson draws on Montaigne’s Essais to recover the idea that political toleration as a practice of negotiation, looking to a philosopher not usually considered political: Michel de Montaigne. Douglas I. Thompson draws on Montaigne’s Essais to recover the idea that political toleration grows out of genuine care for public goods and the establishment of political trust. This book argues that Montaigne’s view of tolerance is worth recovering and reconsidering in contemporary democratic societies where political leaders and ordinary citizens are becoming less able to talk to each other to resolve political conflicts and work for shared public goods.

Partisanship and Political Liberalism in Diverse Societies
Bonotti
This book examines the role of political parties in liberal democracies and their function, within the context of one of the most influential contemporary political theories, John Rawls’s political liberalism.
The Perfectionist Turn
From Metanorms to Metaethics
Douglas Den Uyl, Liberty Fund, Inc. and Douglas Rasmussen, St. John’s University in New York City

Contemporary political philosophy – e.g. Martha Nussbaum, John Rawls and Amartya Sen – tries to separate itself from other philosophical positions and frameworks. Now, Den Uyl and Rasmussen challenge this trend by moving from liberalism to what they call ‘individualistic perfectionism’, creating a powerful new way to think about ethics.

Beyond Origins
Rethinking Founding in a Time of Constitutional Democracy
Author Angelica Maria Bernal, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Beyond Origins challenges the common view of foundings as singular, extraordinary moments of political origin and creation. Engaging with cases of founding across political traditions – from classical Greece to contemporary Latin America – the book argues that it is only through pragmatist understandings of democratic origins that we can realize the potential for radical democratic change.

Divided Sovereignty
International Institutions and the Limits of State Authority
Carmen Pavel, King’s College London

Divided Sovereignty explores new institutional solutions to the old question of how to constrain states when they commit severe abuses against their own citizens. The book argues that coercive international institutions can stop these abuses and act as an insurance scheme against the possibility of states failing to fulfill their most basic sovereign responsibilities.

Measuring International Authority

Liesbet Hooghe, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Gary Marks, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Tobias Lenz, Georg-August-University Goettingen, Jeanine Bezuijen, Scottish Government, Besir Ceka, Davidson College, and Svet Derderyan, Colorado University Boulder

This ground-breaking book introduces an authoritative comparative measure of the authority that seventy-six international organizations (IOs) can exert over states.

Assembly
Michael Hardt, Duke University, and Antonio Negri, University of Padua and University of Paris VII
- Proposes how contemporary social movements can better harness power to effect lasting change
- Challenges the assumption that social movements must return to traditional, centralised forms of political leadership
- Provides a new analysis of the dominance of finance and money

Each year an eruption of ‘leaderless’ social movements leaves external observers and activists perplexed. Why have the movements, which address the needs and desires of so many, not been able to achieve lasting change? In Assembly, Michael Hardt and Antonio Negri analyze potential paths for creating a more democratic and just society.

A Reproductive History of the Nonhuman
Ruth A. Miller, University of Massachusetts-Boston
- Proposes a new feminist theory of nonhuman biopolitics
- Argues that gender and sexuality are essential in understanding nostalgia as a political force
- Reconceptualizes the politics of reproduction

In recent decades there has been an explosion in work in the social and physical sciences describing the similarities between human and nonhuman as well as human and non-animal thinking. In this book, Ruth Miller argues that these types of phenomena are also useful models for thinking about the growth, reproduction, and spread of political thought and democratic processes. By shifting her level of analysis from the politics of self-determining subjects to the realm of material environments and information systems, Miller asks what might happen if these alternative, nonhuman thought processes become the normative thought processes of democratic engagement.

- Presents an even-handed and thorough empirical analysis of global health organizations
- Provides the first ever analysis of public-private partnerships (PPPs) that exist to combat health problems
- Examines how PPPs might grow to be even more effective in their combatting of communicable diseases

An even-handed and thorough empirical analysis of one of the most pressing topics in world affairs, Governing Global Health will reshape our understanding of how organizations can more effectively prevent the spread of communicable diseases like AIDS and reduce pervasive chronic health problems like malnutrition.

Exile, Diaspora, and Return
Changing Cultural Landscapes in Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, and Uruguay
Luis Roniger, Wake Forest University, Leonardo Senkman, Hebrew University, Saul Sosnowski, University of Maryland, and Mario Sznajder, Hebrew University
During the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries, dictatorships in Latin America hastened the outward movement of intellectuals, academics, artists, and political and social activists to other countries. The authoritarian rulers assumed that they would assure their control of politics and domestic public spheres by forcing opposition movements out of the country. Yet, by enlarging a diaspora of co-nationals, the authoritarian rulers emboldened opposition forces beyond their national borders. Exile, Diaspora, and Return provides the first comprehensive analysis of diasporic experiences and the impact of returnees on the public life, culture, institutions, and development of post-authoritarian politics in the Southern Cone of the Americas.

American Constitutionalism
Volume I Structures of Government
Volume II Rights and Liberties
SECOND EDITION
Howard Gillman, UC Irvine, Mark Graber, University of Maryland, and Keith E. Whittington, Princeton University

Constitutionalism in the United States is not determined solely by decisions made by the Supreme Court. Moving beyond traditional casebooks, renowned scholars Howard Gillman, Mark A. Graber, and Keith E. Whittington take a refreshingly innovative approach in American Constitutionalism. Organized according to the standard two-semester sequence—in which Volume I covers Institutions and Volume II covers Rights and Liberties—this text is unique in that it presents the material in a historical organization within each volume, as opposed to the typical issues-based organization.

The Other One Percent
Indians in America
Sanjoy Chakravorty, Temple University, Devesh Kapur, University of Pennsylvania, and Nirvikar Singh, University of California
• Comprehensive and authoritative overview of the Indian immigrant population in the United States
• Explains the three key processes—selection, assimilation, and entrepreneurship—that led to Indians in America becoming the most-educated and highest-income group
• Shows how these processes are rooted in global changes in technology and trade and policy changes in India and the United States

In The Other One Percent, Sanjoy Chakravorty, Devesh Kapur, and Nirvikar Singh provide the first authoritative and systematic overview of South Asians living in the United States.

Twists of Fate
Multiracial Coalitions and Minority Representation in the US House of Representatives
Vanessa C. Tyson, Scripps College
Members of Congress from racial minority groups often find themselves in a unique predicament: they represent constituencies that are more economically disadvantaged than those of their white colleagues and they themselves experience marginalization during the process of policy formulation on Capitol Hill. In Twists of Fate, Vanessa C. Tyson illuminates the ways in which House representatives from racial minority groups have worked together through an understanding of their linked political fates, to advocate successfully for equality and social justice.

Debating Gun Control
How Much Regulation Do We Need?
David DeGrazia, George Washington University, and Lester H. Hunt, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Americans have an ambivalent relationship to guns. The debate over the role of guns and gun regulations in American society tends to be acrimonious and misinformed.

Sustainable Security
Rethinking American National Security Strategy
Edited by Jeremi Suri, University of Texas, and Benjamin Valenti, Dartmouth College
How can the United States craft a sustainable national security strategy in a world of shifting threats, sharp resource constraints, and a changing balance of power? This volume brings together research on this question from political science, history, and political economy, aiming to inform both future scholarship and strategic decision-making.

The Open Door Era
United States Foreign Policy in the Twentieth Century
Michael Patrick Cullinane and Alex Goodall
In 1899, U.S. Secretary of State John Hay wrote six world powers calling for an ‘Open Door’ in China that would guarantee equal trading opportunities, curtail colonial annexation, and prevent conflict in the Far East. Within a year, the region had succumbed to renewed colonisation and war, but despite the apparent failure of Hay’s diplomacy, the ideal of the Open Door emerged as the central component of U.S. foreign policy in the twentieth century. Just as visions of ‘Manifest Destiny’ shaped continental expansion in the nineteenth century, Woodrow Wilson used the Open Door to make the case for a world ‘safe for democracy’, Franklin Roosevelt developed it to inspire the fight against totalitarianism and imperialism, and Cold War containment policy envisioned international communism as the latest threat to global system built upon peace, openness, and effectiveness. In a concise yet wide-ranging examination of its origins and development, readers will discover how the idea of the Open Door came to define the American Century.

By the People
Debating American Government, Third Edition
James Morone, Brown University, and Rogan Kersh, Wake Forest University
By the People, Brief Third Edition, reflects the dynamism of American government and politics with new teaching and learning tools that prepare the students to ENGAGE, THINK, and DEBATE now more than ever before. In a storytelling approach that weaves contemporary examples together with historical context, By the People: Debating American Government, Brief Third Edition, explores the themes and ideas that drive the great debates in American government and politics. It introduces students to big questions like Who governs? How does our system of government work? Why Young Americans are Turned Off to Politics Jennifer L. Lawless, American University, and Richard L. Fox, Loyola Marymount University It includes a new preface from the authors. The first in-depth account of young people’s political ambition Running from Office explores young people’s opinions about contemporary politics and their political ambition (or lack of it). The book paints a political profile of the next generation that should sound alarm bells about the long-term, deeply embedded damage contemporary politics has wrought on U.S. democracy and its youngest citizens.

The Ideas Industry
How Pessimists, Partisans, and Plutocrats are Transforming the Marketplace of Ideas
Daniel Drezner, Tufts University
The new edition of The Ideas Industry – now with three prize-winning presidential scholars: Thomas E. Cronin, Michael A. Genovese and Meena Bose – explores the complex phenomena of the American presidency by presenting a series of paradoxes that shape and define the office.

The Long Reach of the Sixties
LBJ, Nixon, and the Making of the Contemporary Supreme Court
Laura Kalman, UC-Santa Barbara
The Long Reach of the Sixties, legal historian Laura Kalman explores the Supreme Court nomination and confirmation battles of the late 1960s and early 1970s and shows how they have haunted – indeed, scarred – the Supreme Court appointments process ever since.

The American Nonvoter
Lyn Ragsdale, Rice University, and Jerrold G. Rusk, Rice University
The American Nonvoter examines how uncertainty regarding the national context influences people’s decisions whether to vote or not. During times of national crisis, when uncertainty is high, voting increases; during times of stability people stay home. Using rigorous statistical tools and rich historical stories, Lyn Ragsdale and Jerrold G. Rusk show how uncertainty in the national campaign context reduces nonvoting in presidential and midterm elections from 1920 to 2012.

The Making of Black Lives Matter
A Brief History of An Idea
Christopher J. Lebron, Yale University
The #BlackLivesMatter movement has become a media and political phenomenon, but, as Christopher J. Lebron points out in this book, it is part of an older and richer tradition arguing for the equal dignity of black people. Lebron lays out the genesis of the ideas that have built the movement, presenting a foundational blueprint of sorts that can help us make sense of the emotions, demands, and arguments of present-day activists and public thinkers as well as recast the role of historical black thinkers in American life.

The Creative Destruction of New York City
Engineering the City for the Elite
Alessandro Busà, Urban Reinventors Journal
- Shows that today's hyper-gentrification is 'upgrading' the city to standards that are unaffordable to all but the very wealthy, pushing out even those who had been accused of gentrification in the past: New York's middle class
- Traces a pattern of favoritism toward the FIRE (finance, insurance, and real estate) sectors since the 1970s that has thwarted steps toward a more egalitarian and affordable city
- Argues that progressives' good intentions are thwarted by the result of 40 years of austerity, privatization, financial deregulation, and public financing of financial losses that have increased inequality
The Creative Destruction of New York City tells the story of fifteen years of shocking urban changes in New York City under the administrations of Bloomberg and de Blasio, and identifies the urban regime of city producers who are rebuilding cities like New York for a brand new global class of super-wealthy city consumers.

The New Economic Populism
How States Respond to Economic Inequality
William Franko, Auburn University, and Christopher Witko, University of South Carolina
There is a growing consensus among scholars that one of the biggest drivers of income inequality in the United States is government activity (or inactivity). While many Americans look to the federal government to take action to combat inequality, William Franko and Christopher Witko assert that it is the states that are best positioned and most likely to actually do something about it. The New Economic Populism argues that over time, more egalitarian policies at the state level will spread across to other states and, eventually, to the federal level.

Intelligence Accountability in the United States
Loch K. Johnson, University of Georgia
Given the dangers in the world – from terrorism to pandemics – nations must have effective spy services; yet, to prevent the misuse of secret power, democracies must also ensure that their spies are well supervised. Loch Johnson’s Spy Watching focuses on the obstacles encountered by America as it pursues more effective intelligence accountability.

Fed Power
How Finance Wins
Lawrence R. Jacobs, University of Minnesota, and Desmond King, Oxford University
Lawrence Jacobs and Desmond King’s Fed Power is the first sustained examination of the Fed as a potent political institution that systematically provides concealed advantages to a privileged few. The authors trace the Fed’s historic development from the fiery tug-of-war over monetary policy during the 19th century to its current position as the most important institution in the American economy, possessing unparalleled capacity and autonomy to intervene in private markets.

Exchange Politics
Opposing Obamacare in Battleground States
David K. Jones, Boston University School of Public Health
Why did 34 states reject implementing a core part of Obamacare they said they would like, especially given the threat of losing control to the federal government? This book examines the role of governors, the Tea Party, and other interest groups in the fight over health insurance exchanges.

The New Economic Populism
How States Respond to Economic Inequality
William Franko, Auburn University, and Christopher Witko, University of South Carolina
There is a growing consensus among scholars that one of the biggest drivers of income inequality in the United States is government activity (or inactivity). While many Americans look to the federal government to take action to combat inequality, William Franko and Christopher Witko assert that it is the states that are best positioned and most likely to actually do something about it. The New Economic Populism argues that over time, more egalitarian policies at the state level will spread across to other states and, eventually, to the federal level.

VERY SHORT INTRODUCTIONS
Puerto Rico
What Everyone Needs to Know®
Jorge Duany
Florida International University
Puerto Rico, acquired by the United States from Spain in 1898, has a peculiar status among Latin American and Caribbean countries. Its commonwealth status has been hotly debated since its establishment, and the pervasive presence of US power in the island’s military, political, economic, and educational institutions is a source of constant tension. Despite their ongoing colonial dilemma, Puerto Ricans display a strong national identity and pride in their rich culture and history.

Shariah Law

What Everyone Needs to Know

John L. Esposito, Georgetown University, and Natana J. DeLong-Bas, Boston College

In this bold addition to Oxford’s What Everyone Needs to Know series, John L. Esposito and Natana DeLong-Bas offer a guide to the often-discussed but seldom-understood concept of Sharia, responding to misunderstandings and distortions, as well as providing answers to questions about the origin, nature, and content of Sharia.

Latinos in the United States

What Everyone Needs to Know

Ilan Stavans, Amherst College

While Latinos comprise a diverse minority group – with various religious beliefs, political ideologies, and social values – commentators on both sides of the political divide have lumped Latino Americans into a homogenous group that is often misunderstood. Latinos in the United States: What Everyone Needs to Know® provides a comprehensive and thought-provoking exploration of the way that, unlike any other ethnic group, Latinos will thoroughly redefine the way America understands itself in the future.

Conservatism and the Republican Party

What Everyone Needs to Know

Geoffrey Kabaservice

Geoffrey Kabaservice’s Conservatism and the Republican Party: What Everyone Needs to Know® is a book for general readers – Republicans and Democrats alike – who want serious explanations (rather than partisan polemics) about the GOP’s identity crisis and transformation into Trump-style populism. The analysis examines present-day politics through the lens of American political history to trace the roots of current conflicts.
