Women Who Fly
Godesses, Witches, Mystics, and other Airborne Females
Serenity Young
Queens College

- Uses popular and historical figures such as Wonder Woman and Amelia Earhart to study the theme of flying women
- Applies a feminist approach to a little-studied trend in global mythologies

Flying women are a common motif in the world's myths and religions. Not necessarily winged, these women elicit reactions of fear, fascination, and ambivalence, and in so doing reveal much about the perceptions of female power and sexuality through the ages. The first book to systematically chronicle the figure of the flying woman in myth, literature, and art, Women Who Fly sheds new light on the ways in which women have both influenced and been understood by society and religious traditions around the world.

The Fame of C. S. Lewis
A Controversialist's Reception in Britain and America
Stephanie L. Derrick
Independent scholar

- Considers the growth of C. S. Lewis's international fame by comparing the contrasting patterns of reception in Britain and the USA
- Argues that American readers did not appreciate Lewis's literary and cultural context
- Offers insight into his posthumous reputation, highlighting the manipulation of his legacy by the C. S. Lewis Estate and the evolution of rival portraits of Lewis as a Christian apologist and a children's author

C. S. Lewis, long renowned for his children's books as well as his Christian apologetics, has been the subject of wide interest since he first stepped-up to the BBC's microphone during the Second World War. Until now, however, the reasons why this medievalist began writing books for a popular audience, and why these books have continued to be so popular, had not been fully explored. The groundbreaking work considers the growth of C. S. Lewis's international fame by comparing the contrasting patterns of reception in Britain and the USA.

Spirits of Place in American Literary Culture
John Gatta, Sewanee: The University of the South

- Offers a fresh synthesis of religious, philosophic, and literary perspectives on issues of place-studies
- First book of its kind with a focus on American literary texts
- Combines literary analysis with pedagogical application and personal narrative

What might it mean, existentially and spiritually, to form an intimate relation with discrete sites or dwelling places on earth? This book offers a uniquely integrative perspective on the matter. Blending theological and cultural analysis, it focuses on the multi-layered witness enshrined in American literary texts and demonstrates that hallowed geography and the sacramentality of place have mattered throughout our history.

Paul and the Gentile Problem

Matthew Thiessen, McMaster University

- Provides a new solution to the age-old problem of Paul and the Jewish law
- Provides new readings of Romans 2:17-29 and Galatians 4:21-31, two notoriously difficult passages
- Argues that ethnicity remained deeply important for Paul

Paul and the Gentile Problem provides a new explanation for the apostle Paul’s statements about the Jewish law. Instead of understanding his arguments against circumcision to be criticisms of Judaism or the law, this book makes the case that Paul meant to oppose gentile judaizing.

A Redactional Study of the Book of Isaiah 13-23

Jongkyung Lee, independent scholar

This book argues that a series of programmatic additions were made to the oracles concerning the nations in Isa 13-23 during the late-exilic period by the same circle of writers who were responsible for Isa 40-55. These additions were made to create continuity between the ancient oracles against the nations from the Isaiah tradition.

A Theological Introduction to the Old Testament
Mark W. Hamilton, Abilene Christian University
Ancient Israel’s Scriptures have exerted worldwide influence for more than two millennia. They explore human experience, including the human longing for the divine, through the powerful media of story, ritual, wisdom, and prophecy. This book retraces the Bible’s exploration and shows how not only its conclusions but the steps taken to reach them still matter.

Wisdom in Classical and Biblical Tradition
Michael Legaspi, Pennsylvania State University
Wisdom in Classical and Biblical Tradition begins with the recognition that modern culture emerged from a synthesis of the legacies of ancient Greek civilization and the theological perspectives of Jewish and Christian scriptures. Part of what made this synthesis possible was the importance of wisdom in both sources. Michael Legaspi analyzes accounts of wisdom from foundational texts that range from the Homeric period to the destruction of the Second Temple, and explains why the search for wisdom remains an important but problematic endeavor today.

The Forgotten Creed
Christianity’s Original Struggle against Bigotry, Slavery, and Sexism
Stephen Patterson, Willamette University
The first Christian creed said nothing about Christ, God, or salvation. Instead it told the followers of Jesus who they were: Children of God. Among them, distinctions of race, class, and gender would count for nothing. The Forgotten Creed is the story of that first, forgotten creed and its remarkable vision of human solidarity.

New Testament Christianity in the Roman World
Harry O. Maier
Vancouver School of Theology
- Considers the Roman Empire’s material role in the development of the New Testament and its audiences
- Examines the lived experience of Early Christians through the Cosmic, Global, Local, Household, and Personal realms
- Deconstructs religion as a single stable identity, considering the ways in which religion makes possible different and competing kinds of identity and meaning

What did it mean to be a Christian in the Roman Empire? In one of the inaugural titles of Oxford’s new Essentials in Biblical Studies series, Harry O. Maier considers the multilayered social contexts that shaped the authors and audiences of the New Testament.

The History of Bronze and Iron Age Israel
Victor H. Matthews
Missouri State University
- Introduces readers to the history, archaeology, and culture of ancient Israel
- Integrates information from extra-biblical sources with biblical narratives
- Analyzes geopolitics and the evolution of complex states in the region

Designed as a supplementary resource for students who have an interest in the ancient Near East and biblical history, this volume provides a basic introduction to the historical, archaeological, and socio-contextual aspects of ancient Israel during its early foundation period through the end of the monarchy in Judah. The History of Bronze and Iron Age Israel features an easy to navigate format, fairly non-technical language, and a series of informative insets that highlights important methodological concepts and comparative material.

Women in the New Testament World
Susan E. Hylen
Candler School of Theology
- Part of Oxford’s Essentials of Biblical Studies series
- Offers a new interpretation of the conflicting evidence for women’s roles and authority in the culture that shaped the New Testament
- Intersects with contemporary discussions of women’s roles in churches or women’s ordination

Readers of the New Testament notice varying ideas about women. Some women are submissive and silent; others have titles of leaders or speak with approval. In this book, Susan Hylen guides readers through new interpretations of this evidence. She argues that women in the culture enacted feminine virtues in a variety of ways, including active leadership in their communities.

Reading Hebrew Bible Narratives
J. Andrew Dearman
Fuller Theological Seminary
- Introduces the narrative traditions of the Old Testament, and offers multiple interpretations
- Encourages readers to actively engage in the process of exegesis
- Focuses on the books of Genesis and Ruth, and the institution of marriage and family in ancient Israel

Reading Hebrew Bible Narratives introduces readers to narrative traditions of the Old Testament and to methods of interpreting them. Considering literary analysis, words and texts in context, and reception history, this volume gives students an overview of how exegesis illuminates stories in the Bible.

A yogācāra Buddhist Theory of Metaphor
Roy Tzohar,
Tel Aviv University

The yogācāra school of Buddhist thought claims that all language-use is metaphorical. Exploring the profound implications of this assertion, Roy Tzhoar makes the case for viewing the yogācāra account as a full-fledged theory of meaning, one that is not merely linguistic, but also applicable to the yogācāra account as a full-fledged theory of meaning.

If You Meet the Buddha on the Road
Buddhism, Politics, and Violence
Michael Jerryson,
Youngstown State University

Drawing on Buddhist treatments of violence, this book explores Buddhist invocation, support, or justification of war, conflict, state violence, and gender discrimination. In addition, it examines the ways in which Buddhists address violence as military chaplains, cope with violence in a conflict zone, and serve as witnesses of blasphemy to Buddhism.

Voice of the Buddha
Buddhaghosa on the Immeasurable Words
Maria Heim,
Amherst College

Voice of the Buddha is a study of the theories of scripture described and practiced by the 5th-century thinker Buddhaghosa, the principal commentator of the Theravada intellectual tradition. By bringing to the fore Buddhaghosa’s theories of texts and commentarial practices, Heim casts new light on early Pali texts and the commentarial system Buddhaghosa’s work represents.

Medjugorje and the Supernatural: Science, Mysticism, and Extraordinary Religious Experience
Daniel Maria Klimek. Bonaventure University.
In 1981, six young people in the village of Medjugorje, in what was then Yugoslavia (now Bosnia-Herzegovina), reported that the Virgin Mary had appeared to them. The Medjugorge visionaries say that Mary has returned every day since then, bringing them important messages from heaven to convey to the world. Over the past three decades the Medjugorje visionaries have been subjected to extensive medical, psychological, and scientific examination, even while undergoing their visionary experiences. Daniel Klimek analyzes the scientific studies on the visionaries in juxtaposition with the major scholars and debates surrounding religious experience, and concludes that a multidisciplinary approach grants a more holistic and deeper understanding of such extraordinary religious experiences.

John Woolman and the Government of Christ
A Colonial Quaker’s Vision for the British Atlantic World
Jon R. Kershner. Lutheran University.
John Woolman, a tailor, was a lay Quaker leader in 18th century America. Led by his radical apocalyptic beliefs, Woolman encouraged social reforms and critiqued the burgeoning trans-Atlantic economy, slavery, and British imperial conflicts. Kershner argues that instead of the militant radical apocalyptic beliefs, Woolman encouraged mystical sources to craft a spiritualized ‘apocalypse of the heart.’

The Jesus People
Movement in America
Larry Eskridge, Wheaton College
The Jesus People were an unlikely combination of evangelical Christianity and the hippie counterculture. God’s Forever Family is the first major examination of this phenomenon in over thirty years. It shows that the Jesus People not only helped create a new, engaged evangelical relationship to youth and popular culture but proved to be a major force in reshaping a resurgent

Confession
Catholics, Repentance, and Forgiveness in America
Patrick W. Carey
Marquette University
Confession is a history of penance as a virtue and a sacrament in the United States from about 1634, when Catholicism arrived in Maryland, to 2015. Fifty years after the major theological and disciplinary changes initiated by the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965) in the years since the Council, penitential language has been overshadowed increasingly by the language of conflict and controversy. In today’s social and political climate, Confession may help Americans understand how much their society has departed from the penitential language of the earlier American tradition, and consider the advantages and disadvantages of such a departure.

Tongues of Fire
Language and Evangelization in Colonial Mexico
Nancy Farriss
University of Pennsylvania
Tongues of Fire investigates the role played by language and translation in the creation of Mexican Christianity during the first centuries of colonial rule. Nancy Farriss analyzes how native elites, acting as translators and parish administrators, served to make evangelization an indigenous enterprise, and the new Mexican church an indigenous one.

Theologies of Guadalupe
From the Era of Conquest to Pope Francis
Timothy Matovina
University of Notre Dame
Our Lady of Guadalupe is the most popular Marian apparition tradition in the Americas – indeed in all of Roman Catholicism – and the only one that has inspired a sustained series of published theological analyses. Theologies of Guadalupe explores the way theologians have understood Our Lady of Guadalupe and sought to assess and foster her impact on the lives of her devotees since the seventeenth century. It also examines how the Guadalupe cult rose above all others in colonial Mexico and was transformed from a local devotion into a regional, national, and then international phenomenon.

Figuring Racism in Medieval Christianity
M. Lindsay Kaplan
Georgetown University
M. Lindsay Kaplan expands the study of the history of racism through an analysis of the medieval Christian concept of Jewish servitude. Developed through exegetical readings of Biblical figures in canon law, this discourse produces a racial status of hereditary inferiority that justifies the subordination not only of Jews, but of Muslims and Africans as well.

THE SUBLHEDAR’S SON
A Narrative of Brahmin-Christian Conversion from Nineteenth-century Maharashtra
Edited and translated by Deepra Dandekar
This is an annotated translation of an award-winning 1805 Marathi novel entitled The Suhbedar’s Son by the Rev. Dinkar Shankar Sawarkar. The novel provides a blueprint of what a Brahminical journey towards Christian conversion encompassed. The novel’s historical context allows modern readers to appreciate the particularity of regional and vernacular Indian Christianity.

Hearing Vocation Differently
Meaning, Purpose, and Identity in the Multi-Faith Academy
Edited by David S. Cunningham, network for Vocation in Undergraduate Education
Many colleges and universities have begun using the language of vocation, which originates in Christian theology, to help undergraduates think about their futures. The contributors to this volume seek to reexamine and re-think this language for the contemporary multi-faith context.

Orthodox Radicals
Baptist Identity in the English Revolution
Matthew C. Bingham
Oak Hill College
During the mid-seventeenth century, Baptists existed on the fringes of religious life in England. Matthew C. Bingham examines this early group and argues that they did not see themselves as a part of a larger, all-encompassing Baptist movement. Rather, their rejection of infant baptism was but one of a number of doctrinal revisions then taking place among English puritans. Orthodox Radicals is a much needed complication of our understanding of baptist identity, setting the early English baptists in the cultural, political, and theological context of the wider puritan milieu out of which they arose.

Debating the Sacraments
Print and Authority in the Early Reformation
Amy Nelson Burnett
University of Nebraska - Lincoln
Amy Nelson Burnett’s Debating the Sacraments brings together the foundational disputes regarding the sacraments that laid the groundwork for the development of two Protestant traditions – Lutheran and Reformed – along with the critical question of authority, particularly biblical authority. She then places these disputes in the context of early print culture, showing how the ideas of the major reformers was filtered through the pamphlets of lesser known figures and translators, editors, and printers.

The Great Conversation
Nature and the Care of the Soul
Belden C. Lane
Saint Louis University
• Draws on the writings of spiritual masters from a wide range of global religious traditions
• Offers a spiritually centered environmentalism as a solution to the destruction of the planet
• Written in an engaging and fluid style
In the face of climate change, species loss, and vast environmental destruction, Belden C. Lane’s spiritually centered environmentalism suggests that we must look to teachers in nature to understand how to save ourselves. Pairing anecdotes of personal encounters with nature with the teachings of spiritual leaders from a range of religious traditions, this book invites us to participate once more in the great conversation among all creatures and the earth itself.

This book examines the development of Isaac of Nineveh’s eschatology through an examination of his use of Syriac source material.

Isaac of Nineveh’s Ascetical Eschatology

Jason Scully, Seton Hall University

This book describes the way Christians in Jerusalem prayed and how their prayer changed in the face of foreign invasions and the destruction of their places of worship.

The Roman Martyrs: Introduction, Translations, and Commentary

Michael Lapidge, University of Cambridge

This volume contains translations of forty Latin passions of saints who were martyred in Rome or its near environs, during the period before the ‘peace of the Church’ (c. 312). Each translation is accompanied by an individual introduction and commentary.

This study investigates portrayals of the first-century philosopher and exegete Philo of Alexandria, in the writings of Clement of Alexandria, Origen, and Eusebius.

Liturgy and Byzantinization in Jerusalem

Daniel Galadza, University of Vienna

This work compares the Minor Prophets commentaries of Theodore of Mopsuestia and Cyril of Alexandria, isolating the role each interpreter assigns the Twelve Prophets in their ministry to Old Testament Israel and the texts of the Twelve as Christian scripture.

St Theodore the Studite’s Defence of the Icons

Torstein Theodor Tollefsen, University of Oslo

This book explores how the Donatist church, a schismatic movement that for a brief moment formed the majority church in Roman North Africa, interpreted the apocalypse during the first two centuries of its existence (c. 300-500).

Gregory of Nyssa’s Doctrinal Works

Andrew Radde-Gallwitz, University of Notre Dame

Martyrdom, Self-Sacrifice, and Self-Immolation: Religious Perspectives on Suicide
Edited by Margo Kitts, Hawai‘i Pacific University
The essays in Martyrdom, Self-Sacrifice, and Self-Immolation address the delicate subject of those elective deaths which can be categorized as religiously sanctioned suicides. Broadly condemned as cowardice across the world’s moral codes, suicide under certain circumstances – such as martyrdom, self-sacrifice, or self-immolation – historically carries a dynamic importance in religious legends, some tragic and others uplifting.

That All May Flourish
Comparative Religious Environmental Ethics

The Confucian Four Books for Women
A New Translation of the Nü Shishu and the Commentary of Wang Xiang
Translated with introductions and notes by Ann A. Pang-White, University of Scranton

This volume brings the first English translation of the Confucian classics, Four Books for Women, to the English-speaking world with extensive commentary by the compiler, Wang Xiang, and annotations by the translator. As a female counterpart to the famous Sishu (Four Books) compiled by Zhu Xi, Wang Xiang’s Nü shishu was an indispensable primer for women’s education from its publication in the 16th century until the beginning of the 20th century. This work provides an invaluable look at the long-standing history and evolution of Chinese women’s writing, education, identity, and philosophical discourse, along with their struggles and triumphs, across the millennia and numerous Chinese dynasties.

Caste and Nature
Dalits and Indian Environmental Politics
Mukul Sharma,
University of Texas
Rarely do Indian environmental discourses examine nature through the lens of caste. Mukul Sharma shows how caste and nature are intimately connected. He compares Dalit meanings of environment to ideas and practices of neo-Brahmanism and certain mainstreams of environmental thought. Showing how Dalit experiences of environment are ridden with metaphors of pollution, impurity, and dirt, the author is able to bring forth new dimensions on both environment and Dalits, without valorizing the latter’s standpoint. The Dalits pose a critical challenge to Indian environmentalism, which has, until now, marginalized such linkages between caste and nature.

THE OXFORD HISTORY OF HINDUISM

The Oxford History of Hinduism: Hindu Law
A New History of Dharmasastra
Edited by
Patrick Olivelle, and Donald R. Davis, both at University of Texas at Austin
• Shows that the history of Hinduism cannot be written without the history of Hindu law
• Provides a concise overview of the literary genres in which Dharmasastra was written with attention to chronology and historical developments
• Presents descriptive and historical studies of all the major substantive topics of Dharmasastra.

Through pointed studies of important aspects and topics of dharma in Dharmasastra, this comprehensive collection shows that the history of Hinduism cannot be written without the history of Hindu law. Part One provides a concise overview of the literary genres in which Dharmasastra was written with attention to chronology and historical developments. Part Two presents descriptive and historical studies of all the major substantive topics of Dharmasastra.

Hinglaj Devi
Identity, Change, and Solidification at a Hindu Temple in Pakistan
Jürgen Schaeffechner,
University of Heidelberg
In this book, Jürgen Schaeffechner examines the political and cultural influences at work at the most influential Hindu pilgrimage site in Pakistan, Hinglaj Devi. The unique character of this pilgrimage site and its modern importance not only for Hindus, but also for Muslims and Sindhi nationalists, brings to the fore the lives of Hindu minorities in the Islamic Republic.

Rites of the God-King
Santi and Ritual Change in Early Hinduism
Marko Geslanj,
Emory University
Rites of the God-King offers a critical revision of mainstream Hinduism from the perspective of the life of a single ritual from medieval India. Drawing theoretical connections to modern ethnographies, it raises questions about the nature of kingship and priesthood, image-worship, and ritual change.

Evil in the Mahabharata
Meena Arora Nayak,
Virginia Community College
A reinterpretation of the Mahabharata that shows how over theepics has lost much of its richness and nuance, and the characters have become one-dimensional cut-outs, distorted into meagre archetypes, creating customary laws that injure society.

Reciting the Goddess
Narratives of Place and the Making of Hinduism in Nepal
Jessica Vantine Birkenholtz,
University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Reciting the Goddess is the first book-length study of Nepal’s goddess Swasthani and the popular Svasthaniratakah textual tradition. Drawing on archival and ethnographic research, it examines the making of Hinduism in Nepal, a history that is largely neglected in master narratives of Hinduism on the Indian subcontinent.

Feeding a Thousand Souls
Women, Ritual, and Ecology in India—An Exploration of the Kolam
Vijaya Nagarajan
University of San Francisco

• The first comprehensive book in English on the kolam, a ritual rice flour drawing created by Tamil women
• Explores the kolam’s significance in historical, mathematical, ecological, anthropological, and literary contexts
• Based on years of research on the kolam and on the experiences of Tamil women

Every day millions of Tamil women in southeast India wake up before dawn to create a new kolam, an ephemeral but highly elaborate ritual design made with rice flour, on the thresholds of homes, businesses, and temples. This thousand-year-old ritual welcomes and honors the goddesses Lakshmi and Bhudevi. The first comprehensive study of the kolam in English, Feeding a Thousand Souls is the culmination of Vijaya Nagarajan’s many years of research and writing on this exacting ritual practice.

The Snake and the Mongoose
The Emergence of Identity in Early Indian Religion
Nathan McGovern
Franklin and Marshall College

In The Snake and The Mongoose, Nathan McGovern turns the commonly-accepted model of the origins of early Indian religions on its head. Instead of assuming a fundamental dichotomy between Brahmanical and non-Brahmanical in ancient India, McGovern shows that there were many different groups who all saw themselves as Brahmanical, and out of whose contestation with one another the distinction between Brahmanical and non-Brahmanical emerged.

HISTORY OF RELIGION - ANCIENT

Columbanus and the Peoples of Post-Roman Europe
Alexander O’Hara
Austrian Academy of Sciences
The period 550 to 750 was one in which monastic culture became more firmly entrenched in Western Europe. The role of monasteries and their relationship to the social world around them was transformed during this period as monastic institutions became more integrated in social and political power networks. This collected volume of essays focuses on one of the central figures in this process, the Irish ascetic exile and monastic founder, Columbanus (c. 550-615), his travels on the Continent, and the monastic network he and his Frankish disciples established in Merovingian Gaul and Lombard Italy.

Sacred Stimulus: Jerusalem in the Visual Christianization of Rome
Galit Noga-Banai
Hebrew University of Jerusalem
How did early Christian Rome deal with the fact that Christ was never there? Sacred Stimulus is about the effect Jerusalem had on the formulation of Christian art in Rome during the fourth and fifth centuries. It deals with the visual Christianization of Rome from an almost neglected perspective: not in comparison to pagan art in Rome, but rather as visual expressions of the idea of Jerusalem and its holy sites and traditions.

The Greek of the Pentateuch

Grinfield Lectures On The Septuagint 2011-2012

John A. L. Lee

Macquarie University

The Greek of the Pentateuch is a major contribution to the thriving field of Septuagint studies and to the debate over the nature of the Greek used in the translation. This timely and authoritative study puts a compelling case for accepting that the translators were intimately acquainted with the Greek of their time.

Roman Republican Augury

Freedom and Control

Lindsay G. Driediger-Murphy

University of Calgary

Scholarship on Roman Republican augury has previously tended towards the view that official divination was organized to tell its users what they wanted to hear. This volume argues instead that its rules did not allow humans simply to create or ignore signs at will; when human and divine will clashed it was the latter which was supposed to prevail.

The Church as Sacred Space in Middle English Literature and Culture
Laura Varnam, University of Oxford
This book places us at the heart of medieval religious life, standing inside the church with the medieval laity in order to ask what it meant to them and why. Drawing on a wide range of theoretical and interdisciplinary approaches, it examines the interplay of vernacular literature, ritual and material culture at the centre of parish life.

Christianization and Commonwealth in Early Medieval Europe
A Ritual Interpretation
Nathan J. Ristuccia, University of Chicago
A reassessment of the spread of Christianity in Western Europe. It examines one prominent Christian feast – Rogationtide – in order to argue that the modern religious borders between Christianity, Judaism, and paganism did not exist in the early Middle ages.

The Mongol Empire
Timothy May, University of North Georgia
This book explores the rise and establishment of the Mongol Empire under Chinggis Khan, as well as its expansion and evolution under his successors. It also examines the successor states (Ilkhanate, Chaghatayid Khanate, the Jochid Ulus (Golden Horde), and the Yuan Empire) from the dissolution of the empire in 1260 to the end of each state. They are compared in order to reveal how the empire functioned not only at the imperial level but how regional differences manifested.

Mortal Thoughts

Religion, Secularity, and Identity in Shakespeare and Early Modern Culture

Brian Cummings, University of York

Mortal Thoughts is a study of the question of human identity in the early modern period. It examines literature alongside emerging forms of life writing, life drawing, and self-portraits and considers portrayals of mortality and the moment of death.

The Mongol invasions of Eurasia in the 13th century re-shaped the political map of Asia, opened up economic exchange and triggered unprecedented religious transformations in the territories they conquered. This book offers the first in-depth study of the history of these women in the Mongol empire by looking at the role they played in the political, economic and religious landscape of medieval Iran.

Oxford History of Early Modern Europe, 2018

Robert I. Frost, University of Aberdeen

For 300 years the greatest power in Eastern Europe was the union between the kingdom of Poland and the grand duchy of Lithuania, one of the longest-lasting political unions in European history. This volume is the first detailed study of the making of that union ever published in English.

Fortuna
Deity and Concept in Archaic and Republican Italy
Daniele Miano,
University of Sheffield
What is good luck and what did it mean to the Romans? What connections were there between luck and success? This volume aims to address these questions by focusing on the Latin goddess Fortuna, who was connected to the concept of chance and good fortune, and analysing the changing interactions with deity and concept in ancient Italy.

The Minaret
Jonathan M. Bloom
This beautifully illustrated history depicts the origin and development of the most visible element of Islamic architecture: the minaret. The argument is iconoclastic – that the minaret, long understood to have been invented in the early years of Islam as the place from which the muezzin gives the call to prayer, was actually invented some two centuries later to be a universal symbol of the presence of Islam.

The Oxford Handbook of Religion and Race in American History
Edited by Kathryn Gin Lum,
University of Colorado
• First major collection of essays on religion and race since elections of Barack Obama and Donald Trump
• Contains essays by top scholars whose work on everything from African American religions to Japanese American internment has shaped the field in the past decade
In The Oxford Handbook of Religion and Race in American History, thirty-six scholars investigate the complex interdependencies of religion and race through American history. The volume covers the religious experience, social realities, theologies, and sociologies of racialized groups in American religious history, as well as the ways that religion contributed to and challenged their racialization.

Microcosms of Modernity

Kent F. Schull
Binghamton University

This book heavily critiques Michele Foucault’s approach to punishment, state power, and society by applying it to a non-Western context. He also challenges assumptions held by prominent academics concerning the minimal impact the Second Constitutional Period had on the development of the current Middle East nation-state system and society.

The Gods of Indian Country

Religion and the Struggle for the American West

Jennifer Graber
University of Texas at Austin

- Traces the struggle between Native and Anglo-Americans over a 100-year period
- Examines both Catholic and Protestant efforts to evangelize Native Americans and shape federal Indian policy
- Features more than fifty illustrations, many done by Native Americans

During the nineteenth century, Anglo-Americans inflicted cultural and economic devastation on Native people. The fight over Indian Country sparked spiritual crises for both Natives and Settlers. In the end, the experience of intercultural encounter and conflict over land produced religious transformations on both sides.

Christina Rossetti
Poetry, Ecology, Faith
Emma Mason, University of Warwick

- Provides an absorbing biographical study of renowned nineteenth-century poet Christina Rossetti (1830–1894)
- Argues that Rossetti’s poetry reveals her theology as an argument for spiritual materialism and ecological transformation
- Includes chapters on her work in relation to the Catholic Revival, Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, contemporary debates on plant and animal being, and the relationship between grace and apocalypse

Christina Rossetti (1830–1894) is regarded as one of the greatest Christian poets to write in English. This compelling and authoritative biography shows that Christina Rossetti’s poetry, diaries, letters, and devotional commentaries, are engaged with contemporary theological debate.

Woodrow Wilson
Ruling Elder, Spiritual President
Barry Hankins, Baylor University

- Highlights that Woodrow Wilson was profoundly influenced by Calvinist theology and viewed his political career as a sacred calling
- Probes into the spiritual pilgrimage of this conflicted and tragic figure
- Focuses on the theological views and spiritual practices that undergirded Wilson’s public role and how the challenges of his public life shaped those practices

Woodrow Wilson was easily one of the most religious presidents in American history. Yet, his religion has puzzled historians for decades. This book tells the story of Wilson’s religion as he moved from the Calvinist orthodoxy of his youth to a progressive, spiritualized religion short on doctrine and long on morality.

realities of power in colonial spaces could give way to cultural and political dominion. Through the lives of six Jesuit missionaries in early modern Brazil and numerous failures. Nonetheless, this experience led to the consolidation of an enduring vision of accommodation to local peoples and their cultures, and organizational change. Highlight an array of local and globalizing illustrations which will enliven conversations about the role of religion, and in particular Christianity.

The Oxford History of Protestant Dissenting Traditions, Volume II charts the development of protestant Dissent between the passing of the Toleration Act (1689) and the repealing of the Test and Corporation Acts (1828). The long eighteenth century was a period in which Dissenters slowly moved from a position of being a persecuted minority to achieving a degree of acceptance and, eventually, full political rights.

The Oxford History of Protestant Dissenting Traditions, Volume V extends the study of The Oxford History of Dissenting Protestant Traditions series into the twentieth century, following the spatial, cultural, and intellectual changes in dissenting identity and practice as these once European traditions globalized and settled down in other places.

The Oxford History of Protestant Dissenting Traditions

Edited by Andrew Thompson, University of Cambridge

- Includes contributions written by world-leading experts on the history of Protestant Dissent in the long eighteenth century
- Examines the religious histories of Britain, the British Empire, and the United States
- Considers the central constituent elements of dissenting culture and offers insights into how Protestant Dissent moved from being a minority religious position at the start of this period to one with serious numerical, intellectual, and political influence by the end

The Twentieth Century: Themes and Variations in a Global Context

Edited by Mark P. Hutchinson, Alphacrucis College

- Contributors identify changes in dissenting identity and practice in the twentieth century, as these once European traditions globalized
- Examine encounters of dissenting Protestant traditions with modernity and globalization: changing imperial politics; challenges to biblical, denominational, and pastoral authority; local cultures and languages; and some of the century’s major themes, such as race and gender, new technologies, and organizational change
- Highlight an array of local and globalizing illustrations which will enliven conversations about the role of religion, and in particular Christianity

The early modern European experience in the Indies was marked by accommodation to local peoples and their cultures, and numerous failures. Nonetheless, this experience led to the consolidation of an enduring vision of cultural and political dominion. Through the lives of six Jesuit missionaries in early modern Brazil and India, this book seeks to understand how the messy realities of power in colonial spaces could give way to a grandiose, and self-fulfilling, imagination of empire.
The World Come of Age
An Intellectual History of Liberation Theology
Lilian Calles Barger

Lilian Calles Barger offers the first complete history of the liberation theology movement. Liberationists built a trans-American intellectual movement to represent those marginalized by modern politics and religion by virtue of race, class, or sex. Combining theology with strands of radical politics, social theory, and the history and experience of subordinated groups, these thinkers challenged the religious and political status quo. The World Come of Age demonstrates how liberation theologians set the stage for the subsequent torrent of new religious activism.

Escaped Nuns
True Womanhood and the Campaign Against Convents in Antebellum America
Cassandra L. Yacovazzi

University of Missouri, Columbia

- Offers a cultural history of the convent exposés of the early 19th century
- Traces anti-Catholic propaganda and nativist politics in antebellum America
- Examines the ideal of womanhood in early American life

On the eve of the Civil War, Awful Disclosures of the Hotel Dieu, a convent expose by a fraudulent ‘escaped nun’ Maria Monk, captivated readers. The book served as a centerpiece for a larger campaign against convents, marked by riots, propaganda, and nativist politics, and reflected deep concerns regarding women, religious life, and the fate of the Republic.

William Penn
A Life
Andrew R. Murphy, Rutgers University

- The first major biography of William Penn in decades, making full use of Penn’s complete collected papers
- Follows Penn’s life from his early days as the son of a respected naval admiral through his controversial conversion to Quakerism, including his public career advocating for religious freedom, his role in the founding of the Pennsylvania, his multiple stints in prison, and his tempestuous relationship with his own colonists
- Argues for Penn’s place as a critical proponent of religious freedom in England and the United States

It may surprise many that William Penn, who founded one of the thirteen original American colonies, spent just four years on American soil. Even more surprising, though, is Penn’s remarkable impact on the fundamental principles of religious freedom on both sides of the Atlantic, especially given his tumultuous life: from his youthful radicalism as leader of the Quaker movement to his role as governor and proprietor of a major American colony; from royal courier to alleged traitor to the Crown. In the first major biography of this important transatlantic figure in more than forty years, Andrew R. Murphy takes readers through the defiant and complex life of a religious dissenter, political theorist, and social activist.

HISTORY OF RELIGION - MODERN

NEW IN PAPERBACK

The Catholic Enlightenment
The Forgotten History of a Global Movement
Ulrich L. Lehner, Marquette University
- Tells the forgotten story of Enlightenment Catholics who fought for modern ideals and were receptive to new forms of thought
- Shows the deep historical roots of Pope Francis’ reforms
- Offers a global perspective on Catholic reformers of the eighteenth century
The most cherished values of modernity are unthinkable without the eighteenth-century Enlightenment. Equal rights, the end of discrimination, the growth of democracy, and the idea of perpetual progress stem from the Enlightenment, most of the progressive reforms associated with the Enlightenment actually began to take shape during the Catholic counter-Reformation two centuries earlier, and were staunchly defended by enlightened Catholics during the eighteenth century. This is the forgotten story of an open-minded Catholicism, which was later snuffed out, and reemerged after Vatican II.

God in the Rainforest
Missionaries and the Waorani in Amazonian Ecuador
Kathryn T. Long, Wheaton College
- Brings world Christianity to life, giving agency to indigenous actors alongside both Protestant and Catholic missionaries
- The first book to provide an extensive history of missionaries and the Waorani, drawing on previously untapped sources in Spanish and English, and placing a vivid narrative in its social and cultural context
- Offers a nuanced and extensively researched approach to one of the most widely publicized and contested stories of American evangelical missions
Set in the jungles of Amazonian Ecuador, God in the Rainforest tells the story of an iconic evangelical mission. Beginning in 1956 with the deaths of five young Americans at the hands of the Waorani people, the book explores the aftermath of this incident as well as the ongoing complexities of Waorani-missionary interaction.

Envisioning a Tibetan Luminary
The Life of a Modern Bönpo Saint
William M. Gorvine, Hendrix College
The book examines the religious biography of Shardza Tashi Gyaltse (1859–1934), the most significant modern figure representing the Tibetan Bon religion, a vital minority tradition underrepresented in Tibetan studies. Utilizing close readings of two versions of Shardza’s life-story, along with oral history collected in Bon communities, the book presents and interprets the biographical image of this major figure, and includes an English translation of his life-story.

A study of social organization, political power, conversion to Christianity, and church building in Anglo-Saxon Yorkshire in 600-1066 AD. Kingship, Society, and the Church in Anglo-Saxon Yorkshire argues that the decision of local kin-groups to convert to Christianity transformed kingship, society, and even the physical landscape.

Begging, Charity and Religion in Pre-Famine Ireland
Ciarán McCabe
Beggars and begging were ubiquitous features of pre-Famine Irish society, yet have gone largely unexamined by historians. This book explores for the first time the complex cultures of mendicancy, as well as how wider societal perceptions of and responses to begging were framed by social class, gender and religion.

Confessional Mobility and English Catholics in Counter-Reformation Europe

Liesbeth Corens, University of Oxford

In the wake of England’s break with Rome and gradual reformation, English Catholics took root outside of the country, in Catholic countries across Europe. Confessional Mobility and English Catholics in Counter-Reformation Europe explores their arrival and the foundation of convents and colleges on the Continent as well as their impact beyond that initial moment of change.

Dynastic Politics and the British Reformations, 1558-1630

Michael Questier, University of Vanderbilt

During the later sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries, it was usual to consolidate power through lines of royal succession and marriage into other royal and princely families. Michael Questier shows that while this secured political power, it also caused a lot of religious upheaval in this period of already-fraught western Christendom.

Muslims of Central Asia

An Introduction

Galina Yemelianova

Between the tenth and sixteenth centuries Central Asia was one of the most prestigious cultural areas of the entire Muslim world, playing a pivotal role in the Silk Road trade. This absorbing history is traced in this fascinating study which shows how, from the seventh century to the present day, the region’s people have negotiated their distinctively Central Asian Islamic identity in the face of enduring external Islamic and non-Islamic dominations, ethnic nationalisms and, more recently, global transnational Islamic influences.

Piety and Public Opinion
Understanding Indonesian Islam
Thomas B. Pepinsky
Cornell University, R. William Liddle, Ohio State University, and Saiful Mujani, State Islamic University of Indonesia-Jakarta

Across the Muslim world, religion plays an increasingly prominent role in both the private and public lives of over a billion people. Will democratic political participation by an increasingly religious population lead to victories by Islamists at the ballot box? Will more conspicuously pious Muslims participate in politics and markets in a fundamentally different way than they had previously? Against the common assumption that piety would naturally inhibit any tendencies towards modernity, democracy, or cosmopolitanism, Piety and Public Opinion reveals the complex and subtle links between religion and political beliefs in a critically important Muslim democracy.

One of the most controversial issues that divided Islamic philosophers and theologians for many centuries was whether human beings would have a spiritual or bodily existence after death. Suhrawardi, a pivotal figure in the history of Islamic philosophy, made a crucial contribution to this debate, with his idea of a world of image. This is a world beyond our earthly existence, to be reached in sleep, meditation, or after death. This unlikely history is unravelled by L. W. This history of Sufi conceptions of the hereafter – often imagined as a place of corporeal reward (Paradise) or punishment (Hell) – is built upon the study of five medieval Sufi Qur’an commentaries. Pieter Coppens shows that boundary crossing from this world to the otherworld, and vice versa, revolves around the idea of meeting with and the vision of God; a vision which for some Sufis is not limited to the hereafter.

The Missing Martyrs
_Why Are There So Few Muslim Terrorists?_  SECOND EDITION
Charles Kurzman, UNC
In this startlingly counterintuitive book, a leading authority on Islamic movements demonstrates that terrorist groups are thoroughly marginal in the Muslim world. Charles Kurzman draws on government sources, public opinion surveys, election results, and in-depth interviews with Muslims in the Middle East and around the world, finding that while young Muslims are indeed angry at the West, they are simply not attracted to terrorist methods. This revised edition, updated to include the self proclaimed ‘Islamic State,’” concludes that fear of terrorism should be brought into alignment with the actual level of threat, and that government policies and public opinion should be based on evidence rather than alarmist hyperbole.

Jewish Education in Eastern Europe

Edited by Elyiana Adler, Pennsylvania State University, and Antony Polonsky

An emphasis on education has long been a salient feature of the Jewish experience, yet the majority of historians of east European Jewish society treat educational institutions and pursuits as merely a reflection of the surrounding culture. The essays in this volume seek to address this gap by presenting education as an active and potent force for change, highlighting the interrelationship between Jewish educational endeavours, the Jewish community, and external economic, political, and social forces.

The Art of Mystical Narrative
A Poetics of the Zohar
Eitan Fishbane, The Jewish Theological Seminary
In the study of Judaism, the Zohar has captivated the minds of interpreters for over seven centuries, and continues to entertain readers in the modern day. Yet despite these centuries of study, very little attention has been devoted to the literary dimensions of the text. The Art of Mystical Narrative argues that the Zohar story must be understood first and foremost as a work of the fictional imagination.

Jews and Muslims in South Asia
Reflections on Difference, Religion, and Race
Yulia Egorova, Durham University
Jews and Muslims in South Asia examines how Jews and Muslims relate to each other in a place where, in contrast to Europe, their perceived attitudes towards one another do not often make headlines. Yulia Egorova finds that in this context Jewish and Muslim communities interact in ways that don’t fit Western stereotypes. At the same time, this relationship is still intrinsically connected to global narratives about Jews and Muslims.

A Palace of Pearls
The Stories of Rabbi Nachman of Bratslav
Howard Schwartz
Foreword by Rami Shapiro, and illustrated by Zann Jacobrown
Includes Rabbi Nachman’s thirteen major stories, as well as several previously unknown or lost stories. Elevates Nachman’s standing to the level of such literary icons as Gogol and Kafka. Offers a revelatory look at Nachman’s incorporation of Kabbalah into his stories. Commentary by a three-time Jewish Book Award winner. Featuring illustrations by Zann Jacobbrown, as inspired by the stories of Rabbi Nachman.

Rabbi Nachman of Bratslav (1772-1810) is widely considered to be one of the foremost visionary storytellers of the Hasidic movement. Howard Schwartz has compiled the most extensive collection of Nachman’s stories in English yet. In addition to his famous Thirteen Tales, Schwartz includes here many stories, parables, dreams, and folktales.

The Power of Godliness
Mormon Liturgy and Cosmology
Jonathan Stapley
DFI Corporation
- Provides a new analysis and framework of Mormon priesthood
- Controverts previous work on women and the priesthood
- Access to previously unused and restricted sources

A church’s liturgy is its ritualized system of worship, the services and patterns in which believers regularly participate. While the term often refers to a specific formal ritual like the Roman Catholic Mass, events surrounding major life events – birth, coming of age, marriage, death – are often celebrated through church liturgies. By documenting and analyzing Mormon liturgical history, Jonathan Stapley is able to explore the nuances of Mormon belief and practice. More important, he can demonstrate that the Mormon ordering of heaven and earth is not a mere philosophical or theological exercise. The Power of Godliness is the first work to establish histories for these unique liturgies and to provide interpretive frameworks for them.

Sister Saints
Mormon Women since the End of Polygamy
Colleen McDannell
University of Utah
- The first history of modern Mormon women
- Tells the story of Mormon women around the globe, not just in the United States
- Argues that Mormon women have been critical to maintaining and transforming the Mormon faith

Sister Saints offers a sweeping history of modern Mormon women—a story that is much more complex than stereotypes suggest. Colleen McDannell shows, with keen insight and narrative flair, that Mormon women have long been critically important in creating, maintaining, and transforming their faith.

The Next Mormons
How Millennials Are Changing the LDS Church
Jana Riess
Religion News Service
- Features previously unpublished interviews and national data on four generations of Mormons and former Mormons
- Offers the first generational comparison of Mormons in their beliefs, practices, and political views
- Points to several key groups who are leaving the Mormon faith and why

About three-quarters of people who grew up Mormon used to remain in the LDS Church, but in recent years, this number has dropped to about half. This book draws on survey research and interviews to explain why so many young adults are leaving the faith, placing the Mormon story in the broader context of rising secularism in America. Along the way it gives personal stories of Mormons’ missionary and temple experiences, unpacks changing understandings of the family, and explores the generational fallout of the religion’s political conservatism.

A Voice in the Wilderness
The 1888-1930 General Conference Sermons of Mormon Historian Andrew Jenson
Edited by Reid L. Neilson, and Scott D. Mariano, both at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

A Voice in the Wilderness features all twenty-eight of Assistant Church Historian Andrew Jenson’s sermons at LDS General Conference, with introductions and annotations that place the sermons within their historical and religious contexts. This study of Jenson’s sermons moves the focus off the Mormon hierarchy at general conference, uncovering the richness and diversity that thrives just beneath the surface of official ecclesiastical discourse.

Sartre on Sin
Between Being and Nothingness
Kate Kirkpatrick
University of Hertfordshire and St. Peter’s College
This work argues that Jean-Paul Sartre’s early philosophy had a notable inheritance from the Christian doctrine of original sin. With particular attention to Being and Nothingness, Kirkpatrick connects Sartre to an Augustinian tradition of Christian thought according to which nothingness enters the world with the creation of the human.

The Golden Age of Indian Buddhist Philosophy
Jan Westerhoff
University of Oxford
Jan Westerhoff unfolds the story of one of the richest episodes in the history of Indian thought, the development of Buddhist philosophy during the first millennium CE. He aims to offer the reader a systematic grasp of key Buddhist concepts such as non-self, suffering, reincarnation, karma, and nirvana.

Edited by Fiona Ellis
University of London
A collection of original essays offering new ways to understand religion by challenging the terms of debate in the face of contemporary critiques, in particular philosophical naturalism.

Jewish Philosophy in the Middle Ages
Science, Rationalism, and Religion
T. M. Rudavsky
Ohio State University
T. M. Rudavsky tells the story of the development of Jewish philosophy from the 10th century to Spinoza in the 17th, as part of a dialogue with medieval Christian and Islamic thought. She gives a broad historical survey of major figures and schools within the medieval Jewish tradition, focusing on the tensions between Judaism and rational thought.

Ascent
Philosophy and Paradise Lost
Tzachi Zamir
Hebrew University of Jerusalem
Engaging with heady topics such as knowledge, meaningful agency, vitality, and gratitude, Ascent advances an argument regarding Milton’s Paradise Lost and the role of the imagination in religion. Miltonists are offered not a contextualization of Milton’s views relative to his contemporaries or predecessors, but rather an attempt to bring him into conversation with pressing topics of contemporary philosophy.

The Hiddenness of God
Michael C. Rea
University of Notre Dame
- Addresses the problem of divine hiddenness which concerns the ambiguity of evidence for God’s existence, the elusiveness of God’s comforting presence, the palpable and devastating experience of divine absence and abandonment, and more
- Argues that divine hiddenness is not a problem to be explained away but rather a consequence of the nature of God himself
- Explains how scripture and tradition bear testimony not only to God’s love, but to God’s transcendence

What Is It Like To Be Dead?

Near-Death Experiences, Christianity, and the Occult

By Jens Schlieter, University of Bern

What is it like to be dead? This book offers the first full account of the modern genealogy of “near-death experiences,” focusing on the functions of these experiences in the religious field of Western modernity. Emerging as autobiographical narratives, they were used in Christian, esoteric, and spiritist-occult traditions as substantial proof for the survival of death, or the claim that the soul is able to leave the body. Now widely disseminated, they serve functions ranging from reassurance that religious experience is still possible to evidence for the transcultural validity of afterlife beliefs.

The Fifth Corner of Four

An Essay on Buddhist Metaphysics and the Catuskoti

By Graham Priest, City University of New York

Graham Priest presents an exploration of the development of Buddhist metaphysics, which is viewed through the lens of the catuskoti. In its earliest and simplest form this is a logical/metaphysical principle which says that every claim is true, false, both, or neither; but Priest shows how the principle itself evolves as the metaphysics develops.

How Things Count as the Same
Memory, Mimesis, and Metaphor
Adam B. Seligman, and Robert P. Weller, both at Boston University
What counts as the same? This simple question forms the core of how we constitute ourselves as groups and as individuals. This book suggests that different ways of constructing sameness foster different group dynamics and different benefits and risks for the creation of plural societies.

Litigating Religions
An Essay on Human Rights, Courts, and Beliefs
Christopher McCrudden, Queen’s University Belfast
Human rights literature has tended to exclude religious foundations from the realm of human rights. This has led to a lack of progress which confuses our understanding of the relationship between human rights and religion: this book argues that by paying close attention to developments in human rights litigation we can make theoretical progress.

Offence to Religion
Rights, Speech, and the Sacred
Nicholas Hatzis, City University of London
Is government justified in restricting speech offensive to religious belief? If so, what principles are at stake? Drawing on constitutional theory and social and political philosophy, Hatzis discusses the normative reasons that support or negate government interference and their interaction with individual and collective religious freedom.

The Ethical Demand
K. E. Løgstrup
Oxford University Press
The Ethical Demand is a seminal work in the history of ethics and is a key text for students of contemporary ethics. It remains one of the most important philosophical responses to the question of what the ethical demands of the moral life and social life really are. Løgstrup’s answers cut to the heart of the question and are written in a style that is both rigorous and profoundly accessible.

Compulsion in Religion
Saddam Hussein, Islam, and the Roots of Insurgencies in Iraq
Samuel Helfont
University of Pennsylvania
Compulsion in Religion investigates religion and politics in Saddam Hussein’s Iraq as well as the roots of the religious insurgencies that erupted in Iraq following the American-led invasion in 2003. In looking at Saddam Hussein’s policies in the 1990s, many have interpreted his support for state religion as evidence of a dramatic shift away from Arab nationalism toward political Islam. While Islam did play a greater role in the regime’s symbols and Saddam’s statements in the 1990s than it had in earlier decades, the archival records and the regime’s internal documents challenge this theory.

Identity, Conflict And Politics in Turkey, Iran And Pakistan
Edited by Gilles Dorronsoro and Olivier Grojean
A critical assessment of how identities shape political behaviour and violence in Iran, Turkey and Pakistan.

Authoritarian Containment
Public Security Bureaus and Protestant House Churches in Urban China
Marie-Eve Reny, Université de Montréal
In Authoritarian Containment, Marie-Eve Reny examines why local public security bureaus tolerate unregistered Protestant churches in urban China – an officially atheist country where religious practice is controlled by the state – when the central government considers them illegal. She also notes that other authoritarian regimes have employed a similar strategy to control the activities of informal religious organizations.

Irreverence and the Sacred
Critical Studies in the History of Religions
Edited by Hugh Urban, Ohio State University, and Greg Johnson, University of Colorado, Boulder
Irreverence and the Sacred brings together some of the most cutting-edge, interdisciplinary, and international scholars working today in order to debate key issues in the critical and comparative study of religion. The project is inspired in large part by the work of Bruce Lincoln, whose influential and wide-ranging scholarship has consistently posed challenging and often-irreverent questions that have pushed the boundaries of the field of religious studies in important, sometimes controversial ways.

Sayyid Qutb and the Origins of Radical Islamism
John Calvert, Creighton University
Sayyid Qutb (1906-1966) is considered one of the most influential ideologues of radical Islamism. This biography rescues Qutb from the label of ‘terrorist’ by offering a sophisticated analysis of his thought. It offers a view into the world of British colonialism, the birth of Egyptian Muslim Brotherhood, and the growth of radical Islam.

The Oxford Handbook of Religion and American Education

The Oxford Handbook of Religion and American Education brings together preeminent scholars to craft a comprehensive survey and assessment of the study of religion and education in the United States.

This American Moment
A Feminist Christian Realist Intervention
Caron E. Gentry, University of St Andrews
This American Moment looks at the anxieties that plague American politics, including those that deny the importance of Black Lives Matter and support the subordination of women, particularly as they relate to the election and continued support of President Trump. The book proposes feminist Christian realism, an update on Reinhold Niebuhr’s Christian realism, as a way to re-engage the importance of love and relationships in politics.

Chains of Persuasion
A Framework for Religion in Democracy
Benjamin R. Hertzberg
Emory University
Citizens worldwide appeal to religious ideals, institutions, and identities in their political activism. Yet most liberal democratic theory offers citizens little applicable guidance in evaluating such activism. Chains of Persuasion uses democratic theory to develop a new framework for assessing the proper place of religion in democratic political life.

This Is Our Message
Women’s Leadership in the New Christian Right
Emily S. Johnson, University of Tennessee
• Explains the history of conservative evangelical women to unfamiliar audiences in an even-handed and respectful tone
• Explores the recent history of women’s anti-feminist activism and the emergence of ‘conservative feminism’
• Examines the importance of evangelical women’s national leadership in the modern religious right
Evangelical women have been national leaders in the New Christian Right since its ascendancy in the 1970s. This book focuses on four women – Marabel Morgan, Anita Bryant, Beverly LaHaye, and Tammy Faye Bakker – and traces their legacies in the twenty-first century careers of Sarah Palin and Michele Bachmann.

Hezbollah
Socialisation and its Tragic Ironies
Adham Saouli, University of St. Andrews
For three decades we believed that the impetus of establishing an Islamic state in Lebanon was Hezbollah’s main goal. This book disagrees. Drawn from over fifteen years of research, it traces Hezbollah’s political trajectory, or socialisation process, from its birth in 1982 to 2017. It identifies the religio-political identity and doctrine that inspire Hezbollah and the politico-strategic goals that motivate it.

and the Power of the Invisible World
Clay Routledge, North Dakota State University
Humans – even those who consider themselves secular or atheists – are utterly seduced by supernatural beliefs. Clay Routledge, an experimental social psychologist who grew up in a deeply religious environment, argues that belief or trust in forces beyond our understanding is natural and rooted in our fears of death. In Supernatural: Death, Meaning, and the Power of the Invisible World, Routledge argues that supernatural thinking is adaptive, even healthy, and that it should unite and not divide us.

Darwinism, Christianity, and their Battle to Understand Human Conflict
Michael Ruse, Florida State University
The Problem of War argues that the different perspectives of Christians and Darwinians on the nature and causes of warfare reveal them to be playing the same game, offering not so much scientific or empirical explanations but rival value-laden analyses, suggesting we have less a science-religion conflict and more one between two rival religious visions – Christianity and a form of secular Darwinian humanism.

American Cosmic
UFOs, Religion, Technology
D. W. Pasulka, University of North Carolina Wilmington

• Examines the mechanisms that foster belief in intelligent extraterrestrial life
• Based on a six-year, immersive study of communities of UFO believers, including Silicon Valley entrepreneurs and scientists
• Argues that TV shows and movies have become a means of answering questions formerly answered by traditional religions

More than half of American adults and more than seventy-five percent of young Americans believe in intelligent extraterrestrial life. This level of belief rivals that of belief in God. In American Cosmic, D.W. Pasulka examines the mechanisms that foster a thriving belief in extraterrestrial life. Her work takes her from Silicon Valley to the Vatican Secret Archive and reveals how media has supplanted religion as a cultural authority that offers believers answers about non-human intelligent life.

Secularity and Science
What Scientists Around the World Really Think About Religion
Elaine Howard Ecklund, Rice University, David R. Johnson, University of Nevada Reno, Brandon Vaidyanathan, Catholic University of America, Kirstin R.W. Matthews, and Steven W. Lewis, both at Baker Institute for Public Policy, and Robert A. Thomson, Jr., and Di Di, both at Rice University

• Based on the largest international study of scientists’ attitudes towards religion ever undertaken
• Shows that religion and science coexist in scientist’s lives, and even atheists see spirituality in their work
• Argues that the idea of conflict between religion and science is an invention of the West

Based on over 600 interviews and surveys of over 20,000 scientists worldwide, Secularity and Science: What Scientists Around the World Really Think About Religion tells the story of the relationship between science and religion in the lives of scientists. The book makes four key claims: there are more religious scientists than we might think; religion and science overlap in scientific work; scientists – even atheist scientists – see spirituality in science; and finally, the idea that religion and science must conflict is primarily an invention of the West.

If I Give My Soul
Andrew Johnson, University of Southern California

Pentecostal Christianity is flourishing inside the prisons of Rio de Janeiro. To find out why, Andrew Johnson dug deep into the prisons themselves, spending two weeks living in a Brazilian prison as if he were an inmate and returning many times afterward to speak to the men and observe prison church’s worship services, which were led by inmates. If I Give My Soul provides a deeply personal look at the relationship between the margins of Brazilian society and the Pentecostal faith, both behind bars and in the favelas, Rio de Janeiro’s peripheral neighborhoods.

This study lays the groundwork for a constructive contribution to the contemporary debate regarding divine action. It charts the history of debate about divine action among key Anglophone philosophers of religion. This history includes the development of the concept of divine action in the Christian tradition, tracing various models of ultimate reality, including both apophatic and non-apophatic approaches. The study offers a comprehensive systematic classification, comparison, and evaluation of the major classes of theories of ultimate reality. It provides a variety of context-dependent meanings and perspectives on the concept of divine action.

Divine Agency and Divine Action, Volume I
Exploring and Evaluating the Debate
William J. Abraham, Southern Methodist University
- Shows that the problems arising in treatments of divine action in the Christian tradition stem from failure to come to terms with the concept of action in its openness and its complexity
- Argues that the concept of divine action has a variety of context-dependent meanings
- Explores the history of debate about divine action among key Anglophone philosophers of religion

This study lays the groundwork for a constructive contribution to the contemporary debate regarding divine action. It charts the history of debate about divine action among key Anglophone philosophers of religion, and observes that they were largely committed to this erroneous understanding of divine action as a closed concept.

Divine Agency and Divine Action, Volume II
Soundings in the Christian Tradition
William J. Abraham, Southern Methodist University
- Rearticulates the argument of Volume I, which established that no generic concept of action will suffice for understanding the character of divine actions explicit in the Christian faith
- Argues that in order to understand divine action, one must begin with the array of specific actions predicated of God in the Christian tradition
- Examines doctrinal formulations to offer fresh ways of thinking about these issues for our own time

This volume argues that in order to understand divine action, one must begin with the array of specific actions predicated of God in the Christian tradition. The Trinitarian Christology of St Thomas Aquinas
Dominic Legge, Dominican House of Studies, Thomistic Institute

This work brings to light the Trinitarian riches in Thomas Aquinas’s Christology. Legge disproves Karl Rahner’s assertion that Aquinas divorces the study of Christ from the Trinity, by offering a stimulating re-reading of Aquinas on his own terms, as a profound theologian of the Trinitarian mystery of God as manifested in and through Christ.

God’s Command
Towards a Christian Interpretation of Biblical Inspiration
Gerald O’Collins, SJ
Gregorian University, Australian Catholic University, and University of Divinity

Classifies both the writing of the inspired Scriptures and their ongoing effects in the living story of Christianity.

Delivers readers from false problems by carefully distinguishing (but not separating) inspiration from divine revelation and biblical truth.

Distinguishes the meaning intended by the original biblical authors from the role of readers and the primacy of the inspired text itself.

This book anchors its study of inspiration firmly in the Scriptures and examines the inspired nature of the Bible and its inspiring impact.

God’s Command
John E. Hare, Yale University
This work is an exploration of divine command theory, which is the theory that what makes something morally obligatory is that God commands it.

A Cultural Theology of Salvation
Clive Marsh, University of Leicester and Queen’s Foundation for Ecumenical Theological Education, Birmingham

Clive Marsh offers a contemporary Christian understanding of salvation. He shows how salvation is understood and articulated now, when ‘redemption’ language is widely used outside of Christianity, and when redemptive experiences are reported in response to the arts, popular culture, media, and through counselling.

The Politics of Middle English Parables
Fiction, Theology, and Social Practice
Mary Raschko, Whitman College
This study explores how writers reconciled provocative biblical stories with late-medieval culture. Highlighting the many variations and points of conflict across renditions of the same story, the book unfolds a creative theological discourse through which writers attempted to re-construct Christian belief and practice.

Before Jonathan Edwards
Sources of New England Theology
Adriana C. Neele, Yale University
Adriana Neele presents the first comprehensive study of Jonathan Edwards’s use of Reformed orthodox and Protestant scholastic primary sources in the context of the challenges of orthodoxy in his day. Despite the breadth of new scholarship about the post-Edwards era, little analysis has been dedicated to his use of primary sources.

Bonhoeffer on Resistance
The Word Against the Wheel
Michael P. DeJonge, University of South Florida
This study explores the theme of God’s self-revelation has been treated only briefly in Christian theology, at times simply ignored, and often confused with biblical inspiration. Since the late 1980s the theme of God’s self-revelation has broken new ground in the theology of resistance. He illustrates the all-pervasive presence of traditions and presents the risen Christ as the tradition.
