Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals

A Skills-Based Workbook

FOURTH EDITION

Eileen Gambrill, University of California - Berkeley, and Leonard Gibbs, University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire

Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals, Fourth Edition draws on research concerning decision making, judgment, problem solving, and expertise to create 37 hands-on exercises designed to enhance critical thinking values, knowledge, and skills which are integral to evidence-based practice. Attention is devoted to ignorance as well as knowledge – including ignorance promoted by special interests and ignorance that is self-inflicted through lack of knowledge about common biases and fallacies that impede informed decision making. The text is ideal for graduate as well as undergraduate courses in research and practice.

Someone To Talk To

Mario Luis Small, Harvard University

Someone To Talk To reveals the often counter-intuitive nature of social support, showing that Americans often take pains to avoid close friends and family – their ‘strong ties’ – when deciding on whom to rely. In contrast, they often confide in ‘weak ties,’ as the need for understanding or empathy trumps their fear of misplaced trust. Amid a growing wave of big data and large-scale network analysis, Mario L. Small returns to the basic questions of who we connect with, how, and why, upending decades of conventional wisdom on how we should think about and analyze social networks.

Night Call

Embracing Compassion and Hope in a Troubled World

Robert Wicks, Loyola Maryland University

- Lessons that are normally available only to helping and healing professionals, now offered to a wider audience
- Emphasis on the practice of ‘faithfulness’ as opposed to a focus on ‘success’, which demonstrates how to avoid unnecessary discouragement in reaching out to others
- Insight into how to face failure, which can determine whether one will burn out or actually have the opportunity to deepen and grow as an individual

Told through anecdotes, clinical observations, and pearls of wisdom, and drawing from broad literature in psychology, philosophy, religion, and spirituality, Wicks weaves together stories of pain, hope, healing, and strength to guide readers through the night. This text is the culmination of decades of experience of someone who trains the healers, and helps the helpers. Consequently, it affords readers the opportunity to learn the strategies that professional helpers, first responders, ministers, emergency workers, and soldiers have learned to use in dealing with loss, pain, trauma, and grief.

Change
What Really Leads to Lasting Personal Transformation
Jeffrey A. Kottler, California State University - Fullerton

- Includes true stories of powerful transformation from professional athletes, public figures, and regular people both in and outside of the context of psychotherapy.
- While not simply another self-help book, the text gives readers a better appreciation for the difficulty of making change last.
- Author is an accomplished therapist, longtime professor, and writer of several of the most popular counseling and psychotherapy textbooks.

What causes human beings to make a significant change in their lives, a transformative shift in thinking and actions? This fundamental question has preoccupied philosophers, priests, politicians, authors, and scholars for centuries. Today, psychologists and therapists who sit with clients session after session have a unique window into the human psyche, watching the rhythms of change unfold in front of them every day, and yet the process remains a mystery. Research has shown that even in cases of unqualified success, the client and the therapist often have wildly different views on what made it work. Taking that as his starting point, Jeffrey Kottler leads the reader on an exploration of human behavior, seeking to find out what it is that really makes a difference that can lead to transformative and lasting change.

Healing Justice
Holistic Self-Care for Change Makers

Loretta Pyles, State University of New York at Albany

- Draws from the practices of yoga, mindfulness and Ayurveda to offer a holistic, mind-body, or contemplative approach to self-care
- Frames healing justice within the context of contemporary social movements including transformative social practice
- Offers specific skills, practices, and inquiries to help human service professionals and change makers to put the paradigm of healing justice into practice

Healing Justice offers a framework and practices for change makers who want to transform oppression, trauma, and burnout. Concerned with both the possibilities and limits of mindfulness and yoga for self-care, the book attends to the whole self of the practitioner, including the body, mind-heart, spirit, community, and natural world.

Critical Thinking and the Process of Evidence-Based Practice
Eileen Gambrill, University of California, Berkeley

- Integrates research and theory on judgment, decision making, and problem solving as they relate to the process of evidence-based practice
- Emphasizes the importance of attending to ignorance as well as knowledge
- Refers readers to useful additional resources

In Critical Thinking and the Process of Evidence-Based Practice, Eileen Gambrill provides a focused overview of the implementation of evidence-based practices necessary for competent and ethical practice. Providing readers with a description of how to effectively carry out the process of evidence-based practice, this book is designed to help practitioners and clients make informed decisions by drawing on research and theory concerning decision making and problem solving. Chapters are included on: argumentation; expertise; and fallacies and biases that hinder informed decisions, in addition to organizational and personal obstacles to enhancing the quality of services. The importance of attending to ignorance as well as knowledge is also emphasized.

Feeling Good by Doing Good

A Guide to Authentic Self-Esteem and Well-Being

Christopher J. Mruk
Bowling Green State University

Coming to the defense of self-esteem as a valuable and measurable component of good mental health, Feeling Good by Doing Good offers a new evidence-based approach to defining, understanding, and increasing what is known as ‘authentic self-esteem.’ Translating decades of research in the fields of self-esteem, humanistic psychology, positive psychology, and psychotherapy into everyday terms, Christopher Mruk traces the definition of self-esteem back to when it was first used to describe the value of ‘doing that which is both just and right.’ Seen this way, self-esteem is not just feeling good about oneself – rather, it comes from facing life’s challenges in ways that demonstrate one’s competence and worth as a person.

A Place Called Home

The Social Dimensions of Homeownership

Kim R. Manturuk, Duke University, and Mark R. Lindblad, and Roberto G. Quercia, both at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

- This is the first book to give a comprehensive portrait of the many and varied social benefits of homeownership
- Every chapter addresses the challenge of selection bias and every empirical chapter has been peer-reviewed. In research about homeownership, the decision of whether to rent or own is not controlled for
- The authors use the findings to try to extend the benefits traditionally associated with homeownership to renters

A Place Called Home explains that homeownership is associated with many positive and surprising non-financial outcomes, and also how and why this is so. The book ultimately argues that homeownership is an important social tool that can improve the lives of low- and moderate-income people.

The Handbook of Policy Practice
Ira C. Colby, University of Houston
- Addresses the majority of the behavioral outcomes required by the CSWE EPAS
- Geared to all levels of social work practice, from the generalist practitioner to the advanced practitioner
- Content is relevant for the clinical social worker as well as the macro practitioner

The Handbook for Policy Practice is a hands-on practice textbook that explores ways to influence social policy in an agency setting or through formal governmental processes. The text offers a common-sense approach to issue analysis with added attention to the concept of social justice and necessary critical thinking skills.

Technology, Activism, and Social Justice in a Digital Age
Edited by John G. McNutt, University of Delaware
- Examines both the present nature of and future prospects for social change
- Features an array of perspectives from practitioners and scholars
- Incorporates nascent approaches, such as civic technology

Through an examination of online advocacy and social movements, social media, and traditional/electronic advocacy campaigns, Technology, Activism, and Social Justice in a Digital Age provides a fascinating look at the current practice and future of social change efforts.

Social Work Practice and Social Welfare Policy in the United States
A History
Philip R. Popple, University of Texas at Arlington
- The first new social work history written in over twenty years
- Identifies major challenges facing the social work profession
- Explores the development of social work practice theory and techniques, as well as the more traditional focus on social welfare policy

The first new social work history written in over twenty years, Social Work Practice and Social Welfare Policy in the United States identifies, from a historical perspective, major challenges facing the social work profession. Tapping into archival data, the text describes the evolution of social work practice theories and techniques, and discusses social welfare policy and social work practice from the usual ‘top down’ perspective of elites (policymakers, administrators, academics) while adding the ‘bottom up’ perspective of service recipients and social work practitioners.
The Investment State

Charting the Future of Social Policy

David Stoesz, Flinders University and Carnegie Mellon University-Australia

- Serves as a sequel to The Dynamic Welfare State (OUP, 2016) – which highlighted a theory of welfare state decline – by envisioning a new paradigm for social programs
- Outlines three strategies of social investment: Social Development Accounts, Community Credit Unions, and Refundable Volunteer Tax Credits
- Provides a template for future social policy, which can be adapted to cities, states, nations, and international trade agreements

This book proposes a new way of thinking about social programs, premised on social investment, which stands in contrast to a previous era in which social entitlements were regnant. It serves as a sequel to The Dynamic Welfare State (OUP, 2016), which addresses the challenges of the 21st-century information age.

Making Education Work for the Poor

The Potential of Children's Savings Accounts

William Elliott and Melinda Lewis, both at University of Kansas

- Uses authors’ personal stories to illustrate inequities in education system
- Features research conducted with a clear public purpose in mind, in order to increase the relevance and applicability of findings to public policy conversations
- Considers how research resonates with people’s values and how the proposed policy intervention aligns with American ideals

Making Education Work for the Poor identifies wealth inequality as the gravest threat to the American education system. Today, wealth, rather than individuals’ effort and ability, determines educational outcomes. This book calls for universal Opportunity Investment Accounts to be the cornerstone of the wealth-building agenda the nation needs to salvage the American Dream.

Inequalities, Mobility, and Policies in Europe
Edited by Jacqueline O’Reilly, University of Sussex Business School, Janine Leschke, Copenhagen Business School, Renate Ortlieb, University of Graz, Martin Seeleib-Kaiser, Eberhard Karls Universität Tübingen, and Paola Villa, University of Trento
Exacerbated by the Great Recession, youth transitions to employment and adulthood have become increasingly protracted, precarious, and differentiated by gender, ethnicity, and socioeconomic status. Examining employment transitions affected by family and migration, Youth Labor in Transition argues for an integrated analysis of the sphere of economic production and social reproduction if policy intervention is to be effective.

Gail Ukockis
Impassioned but practical, this book dives into the topic of misogyny and proposes strategies for effective action. Using a multi-generational approach, it traces the history of misogyny and considers its meaning today – what is new and what is old – and explores the current state of feminism as new aspects of misogyny continue to emerge in our society that impact girls and women worldwide.

Children of Austerity
Impact of the Great Recession on Child Poverty in Rich Countries
Edited by Bea Cantillon, University of Antwerp, Yekaterina Chzhen, UNICEF Office of Research, Sudhanshu Handa, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Brian Nolan, University of Oxford

The 2008 financial crisis triggered the worst global recession since the Great Depression. Many OECD countries responded to the crisis by reducing social spending. Through 11 diverse country case studies, this volume describes the evolution of child poverty and material well-being during the crisis, and links these outcomes with the responses by governments.

Ghettos, Tramps, and Welfare Queens
Down and Out on the Silver Screen
Stephen Pimpare, University of New Hampshire at Durham

Ghettos, Tramps, an Welfare Queens offers a never-before-seen perspective on Hollywood as it shows how American movies have portrayed poor and homeless people from the silent era to today. It simultaneously provides a novel kind of guide to social policy, exploring how ideas about poor and homeless people have been reflected in popular culture and evaluating those images against the historical and contemporary reality.

Domestic Abuse, Child Custody, and Visitation
Winning in Family Court
Toby G. Kleinman, Adler & Kleinman Attorneys at Law, and Daniel Pollack, Wurzweiler School of Social Work

- Speaks to counterintuitive processes that are often fundamental to understand how family courts work when domestic abuse is present and custody is an issue
- Addresses the judicial fallacy that courts will automatically protect children where domestic violence is present

When domestic abuse and children are involved, divorce and custody can be the epitome of high stakes conflict where, often, the named perpetrator of a child abuses gains custody. This book helps laypeople, mental health professionals, and attorneys navigate the judicial process so that decisions are truly made in the best interest of children.

Couple & Family Social Work

Traumatic Divorce and Separation
The Impact of Domestic Violence and Substance Abuse in Custody and Divorce
Lisa Fischel-Wolovick, City University of New York
- Features discussion of domestic violence, substance abuse, and mental health problems during divorce
- Explores the traumatic impact of intimate partner violence
- Examines gender bias in the courts and need for systemic reforms, including model court movement

This book is an integration of the study of trauma, divorce, and separation impacted by domestic violence, substance abuse, and mental illness. While the original research on divorce took place at roughly the same time as the field of trauma, social scientists did not integrate an understanding of trauma into their understanding of domestic violence and divorce. During divorce, such families are impacted by a history of traumatic exposure to abuse and require court intervention that cannot be addressed by mediation or alternative dispute resolution. They require a trauma-informed interdisciplinary response. The text also discusses gender bias against women in the courts and the gender bias task force movement.

The Hidden Among the Hidden

African-American Elder Male Caregivers

Helen K. Black, University of Maryland - Baltimore County, John T. Groce, Widener University, and Charles E. Harmon, Mature Africans Learning from Each Other (M.A.L.E.)

- Covers a minimally researched area on African-American men as caregivers
- Features findings based on bottom-up research
- Takes a holistic view of the caregiver (i.e. does not consign him to a category while eliciting his opinions on matters regarding caregiving that are critical to him, giving voice to his narrative, and considering him the expert on his life and his caregiving)

What are the experiences of African-American elder male caregivers? Based on research with twelve African-American caregivers born in the first half of the 20th century, this book captures the complexity and poignancy of the caregiving pilgrimage, and roots men’s caregiving narratives within the biographical and historical context of their lives.

Disability-Affirmative Therapy
A Case Formulation Template for Clients with Disabilities
Rhoda Olkin, California School of Professional Psychology

Disability-Affirmative Therapy (D-aT) helps clinicians put the disability of a client into proper focus, without making one of the usual mistakes associated with cross-cultural therapy: overinflating the role of the disability, or underestimating its profound effects. D-aT provides a template for evaluation – nine areas to be discussed with the client – that allows understanding of the client’s lifetime experiences with disability.

Headcase
LGBTQ Writers and Artists on Mental Health and Wellness
Edited by Stephanie Schroeder, and Teresa Theophano, Services and Advocacy for GLBT Elders (SAGE)

- Features voices from communities/demographics that do not typically have access to platforms through which to tell their stories
- Includes an appendix of national, regional, and local resources
- Features special artwork that complements the text

Headcase illustrates the intersection of mental wellness, illness, and LGBT identity, as well as the lasting impact of historical views deeming that to be gay or lesbian equated mental illness. The collection of pieces contained therein offer personal views from both providers and clients, often one and the same, talking about their experiences. The text breaks new ground in documenting issues in LGBTQ mental health care with superbly written and powerfully rendered personal and political stories and images.

Stigma leads to poorer health. In The Oxford Handbook of Stigma, Discrimination, and Health, leading scholars identify stigma mechanisms that operate at multiple levels to erode the health of stigmatized individuals and, collectively, produce health disparities. This book provides unique insights concerning the link between stigma and health across various types of stigma and groups.

The New Public Health Law is the first textbook to arm lawyers and public health professionals of any background with the tools to fully exploit the potential of law to improve public health. Its transdisciplinary approach breaks down complex legal processes into discrete and understandable stages, making it an indispensable roadmap for the difficult work of crafting, monitoring, and improving public health laws.
Dying at the Margins
Reflections on Justice and Healing for Inner-City Poor
David Wendell Moller, Anne Arundel Medical Center

Dying at the Margins: Reflections on Justice and Healing for Inner-City Poor gives voice to the most vulnerable and disempowered population – the urban dying poor – and connects them to the voices of leaders in end-of-life-care. Chapters written by these experts in the field discuss the issues that challenge patients and their loved ones, as well as offering insights into how to improve the quality of their lives. Demystifying stereotypes that surround poverty, Moller illuminates how faith, remarkable optimism, and an unassailable spirit provide strength and courage to the dying poor.

Invisible Visits
Black Middle-Class Women in the American Healthcare System

Tina K. Sacks, University of California, Berkeley

- Examines how Black middle-class women use cultural capital skills, which are accrued largely through class status, to mitigate stereotype threats and racial and gender bias in healthcare settings
- Places the contemporary experience of the Black middle class in a historical context
- Tells the stories of African-American women in their own words

Invisible Visits analyzes why Black middle-class women continue to face inequities in securing fair, equitable, and high-quality healthcare. Unlike other works on health disparities, it integrates social science, public health, and the humanities to better understand why Black women do not receive a proper standard of care at the doctor.

Sanctuary Cities, Communities, and Organizations

A Nation at a Crossroads

Melvin Delgado,
Boston University

• Serves as the first serious, academic book to address the subject of sanctuary cities in the U.S.
• Provides a historical, current, and projected look into the future look at the topic of those who are undocumented in the U.S.
• Appeals to an array of audiences, from human service practitioners to the general public

This is the first serious, academic book to address the subject of sanctuary cities in the United States. The topic is of immense saliency in the socio-political discourse in the United States, with events breaking practically every week concerning the fate of those who are undocumented in this country (including people with DACA statuses). The text provides a comprehensive and up-to-date view of the national issue that promises to continue to stay in the public glare during 2018 and beyond.

Homelessness Among U.S. Veterans

Critical Perspectives

Edited by Jack Tsai, Yale University

Homelessness Among U.S. Veterans synthesizes the new glut of research on veteran homelessness – geographic trends, root causes, effective and ineffective interventions to mitigate it – in a format that provides a needed reference as this public health fight continues to be fought.

Codifying the data and research from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) campaign to end veteran homelessness, psychologist Jack Tsai links disparate lines of research to produce an advanced and elegant resource on a defining social issue of our time.

Mapping and Monitoring Bullying and Violence

Building a Safe School Climate

Ron Avi Astor, University of Southern California, and Rami Benbenishty, Bar Ilan University

- Includes examples of how monitoring can be used, suggests ways to structure survey instruments, and displays examples of school maps so readers can envision maps of their own schools
- Provides the variety of questions education professionals should ask, free resources for reference, and issues they should consider when designing a survey for their student population
- Includes some diagrams as well as charts and tables that readers can use as examples of ways to display and communicate the data to educators, parents, students, and community members

This guide provides professionals charged with reducing bullying and making schools safer with practical solutions for creating and implementing monitoring systems that use multiple sources of data. Including examples of how monitoring works, the authors advocate for an ongoing cycle that involves collecting information from multiple audiences about what is taking place in and around schools. Mapping, which gives school leaders, students, and staff members a visual record of safe and unsafe areas on the campus, is described along with other methods of gathering, analyzing, and sharing feedback.

Bullying, School Violence, and Climate in Evolving Contexts
Culture, Organization, and Time
Ron Avi Astor, University of Southern California, and Rami Benbenishty, Bar Ilan University

• Offers a unifying theory of school violence and bullying
• Provides empirical and conceptual backing that ties different violence literatures together
• Outlines methods, analyses, databases, and ways to integrate time and history into models

Bullying, School Violence, and Climate in Evolving Contexts outlines a novel unifying model that brings together previously distinct literatures on a wide range of issues. Drawing from numerous large-scale research studies from around the globe, the authors examine the theoretical foundations of school safety and bullying and propose a series of groundbreaking new theoretical and practice proposals.

Smart Decarceration

Achieving Criminal Justice Transformation in the 21st Century

Edited by Matthew Epperson, University of Chicago, and Carrie Pettus-Davis, Washington University St. Louis

- Timeliness in the context of the United States reaching a saturation point with mass incarceration, coupled with increased political and moral will to propel an era of decarceration
- Features representativeness of a broad range of perspectives
- Proposes an array of ideas through the entire criminal justice system

Smart Decarceration is a forward-thinking, practical volume that provides concrete strategies for an era of decarceration. This timely work consists of chapters written from multiple perspectives and disciplines including scholars, practitioners, and persons with incarceration histories. The text grapples with tough questions and builds a foundation for the decarceration field.

Serving the Stigmatized

Working within the Incarcerated Environment

Edited by Wesley T. Church, II, Louisiana State University, and David W. Springer, The University of Texas at Austin

- First comprehensive volume devoted exclusively to examining the scope of the problems, risks, and evidence-based institutional and community-based interventions of populations within the criminal justice system
- Features the contributions of over 30 prominent scholars, each with extensive knowledge and expertise in a specific area of the criminal justice system
- Provides a comprehensive discussion of the critical issues, public policies, and intervention strategies and programs that are effective in serving distinct criminal justice populations

Serving the Stigmatized is the first book of its kind that explores best practices when dealing with a specific prison population while under some form of institutional control. If the established goal of a correctional facility is to ‘rehabilitate,’ then it is imperative that the rehabilitation is effective and does not simply serve as a political buzz word. The timing of releasing this book coincides with a real movement in the United States, supported by both conservative and liberal advocates and foundations, to decrease the size of the prison population by returning more offenders to their communities. The text examines 14 specific populations and how to effectively treat them in order to better serve them and our communities.

Structural Interventions for HIV Prevention

Optimizing Strategies for Reducing New Infections and Improving Care

Edited by Richard A. Crosby, University of Kentucky, and Ralph J. DiClemente, New York University

Structural interventions – changes to environment aimed at influencing health behaviors – are the most universal and cost-effective tool in preventing new incidences of HIV. They are not easy to get right, however. Structural Interventions for HIV Prevention offers an authoritative reference for both understanding these programs and instituting them to greatest effect. Whether through changes to policy, environment, social/community norms, or a combination of each, this volume offers actionable and attainable blueprints to creating and evaluating programs in any setting or country. It is an essential resource for researchers and practitioners in the continuing fights against HIV.

Evaluation Practice for Collaborative Growth

A Guide to Program Evaluation with Stakeholders and Communities

Lori L. Bakken, Human Ecology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison

- Oriented toward those who don’t have evaluation expertise but need practical knowledge
- Bridges the evaluation purposes of accountability and learning
- Oriented toward evaluation practice that supports social justice

This book uniquely captures program evaluation concepts, methods, and strategies that are most useful to nonprofit leaders, social science professionals, and students as they engage in evaluation practice. Readers will learn how to work with key stakeholders to determine answerable questions/design studies and analyze, interpret, and report useful findings.

Research Methods for Social Workers

A Practice-Based Approach

Samuel S. Faulkner, Texas A&M University - Kingsville, and Cynthia A. Faulkner, IWU On-line Social Work Program

This book is designed to help readers understand the basic concepts of research and its various components (i.e. ethical considerations, levels of measurement, sampling techniques, etc.) with the ultimate goal of helping students fully grasp how to effectively apply them in a professional setting. The book provides an introduction to statistical analysis (both descriptive and inferential) and techniques for evaluating practice. Each chapter includes short exercises designed to practice the concepts covered in the chapter.

Most youth civic engagement evaluation studies fail to reach beyond specific audiences, thereby hindering the diffusion of evaluation practice wisdom around effective methods to evaluate complex social innovations. This book therefore provides multiple case studies of youth civic engagement evaluation designs and straightforward guidance for designing youth civic engagement evaluations.

Social Work Practice with the LGBTQ Community
The Intersection of History, Health, Mental Health, and Policy Factors
Edited by Michael P. Dentato, Loyola University Chicago

- Weaves together empirical and conceptual content, written by LGBTQ scholars, educators, students, and allies
- Provides strong integration of content related to affirming models and methods of practice
- Addresses issues of intersectionality with practice, urban and rural LGBTQ communities, and micro, mezzo, and macro perspectives

This text broadly examines many important aspects of effective and affirming practice methods with the LGBTQ community, along with considering health, mental health, history, and policy factors. The content was written by social work scholars, educators, practitioners and students to reach across professions (e.g., social work, health, mental health) and across audiences (e.g., students, faculty, researchers, and practitioners).

NEW EDITION

Critical Multiculturalism and Intersectionality in a Complex World
SECOND EDITION

Lacey Sloan, Zayed University, Mildred Joyner, West Chester University, Catherine Stakeman, and Cathryne Schmitz, University of North Carolina Greensboro (UNCG)

- Shares case examples from the field to illustrate the real-life applications and challenges of critical multiculturalism
- Includes discussion questions in each chapter to support critical self-reflection with readers’ own experiences of privilege and oppression
- Examines institutional bias and systemic structures that establish privilege and marginalization of identity groups

By providing a balance between self-reflection and knowledge building, this book guides the examination of social identities, biases, mechanisms of oppression, and impact of privilege. Learning is globally situated with a lens on localized identity, and positionality at the intersections of multiple identities is explored.

Social Work with Latinos
Social, Economic, Political, and Cultural Perspectives

Melvin Delgado, Boston University

This book is specifically focused on preparing social workers for practice and research focused on Latinos in the United States. It provides readers with a multi-faceted and updated perspective on this community, including dispersal patterns across the United States and tapping cultural assets for development of social interventions.

A Space for Race
Decoding Racism, Multiculturalism, and Post-Colonialism in the Quest for Belonging in Canada and Beyond
Kathy Hogarth, and Wendy L. Fletcher, both at University of Waterloo

This book explores the impact of unquestioned racial assumptions in the Canadian narrative that have constructed an insider/outsider culture. From that baseline, authors then develop an analytic designed to move beyond racialized othering to a society of genuine inclusivity and universal belonging.

Feminist Perspectives on Social Work Practice
The Intersecting Lives of Women in the 21st Century
Edited by Shannon Butler-Mokoro, Salem State University, and Laurie Grant, Private Practice
This book takes a contemporary look at the issues that affect women most from a feminist perspective. Going beyond the equal pay for equal work issue, the authors write about mental health, substance abuse, disabilities, parenting, relationships, criminal justice, and aging, all from a holistic and intersectional perspective.
