A digital guide for a lifetime of social service
The digital Encyclopedia of Social Work transforms the classic reference work into a consistently updated resource for a lifetime of social service. Developed through a unique partnership between the National Association of Social Workers Press and Oxford University Press, the digital Encyclopedia brings together the expertise of two leaders in their respective fields, making it the most trusted, timely social work reference available today. With high-quality, scholarly articles that offer practical applications for social workers in the field, this foundational guide provides valuable insights for students, faculty, and practitioners at all levels of experience. New and revised articles are added to the collection each month, ensuring that users can access the most up-to-date information available.

Developed cooperatively with scholars worldwide, Oxford Bibliographies in Social Work offers exclusive, authoritative research guides. Combining the best features of an annotated bibliography and a high-level encyclopedia, this cutting edge resource guides researchers to the best available scholarship across the field of Social Work. Offering a rapidly expanding range of articles and a robust update program, Oxford Bibliographies in Social Work is reaching more scholars and students than ever before, increasing productivity, saving time, and elevating the quality of research.

As a discipline grounded in social theory and the improvement of peoples’ lives, social work scholarship necessarily shifts and changes along with society, which leads, in turn, to an ever-growing body of literature. Oxford Bibliographies in Social Work provides a much-needed filter to the avalanche of scholarly information now available.

Social Work Essentials

Selections from the Encyclopedia of Social Work

Edited by Cynthia Franklin, The University of Texas at Austin School of Social Work

- A curated selection of more than 65 key topics from the prestigious Encyclopedia of Social Work Online, many of which have never before been available in print
- Entries cover topics, theories, and practice orientations that every social worker needs to know, including health care, clinical social work, and research, among many others
- Each entry is followed by a bibliography to provide readers with further material for research or informational reading. Readers can rely on Oxford to point them in the direction of other informed and scholarly opinions and research.

Covering a range of theoretical and practical orientations, Social Work Essentials provides timely updates on the fundamental knowledge needed for contemporary social work practice, written by the fields leading scholars and practitioners. This extensive collection features rigorous analysis of nearly 70 topics that are central to the field today, from child welfare and community organization to human trafficking, military social work, the DSM-5, cognitive behavioral therapies, and motivational interviewing. All articles are written in a clear, straightforward style that will be accessible to readers throughout the profession, and each entry includes a bibliography that provides readers with further directions for research and in-depth study. Drawn from the constantly-updated, field-defining Encyclopedia of Social Work, Social Work Essentials brings together a vital compilation of cutting-edge articles in a compact reference guide that will prove valuable in a diverse range of settings. Individual practitioners, school social workers, and social work students will all benefit from keeping Social Work Essentials close at hand.

Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals
A Skills-Based Workbook
FOURTH EDITION

Eileen Gambrill, University of California, and Leonard Gibbs, University of Wisconsin

Critical Thinking for Helping Professionals, fourth edition draws on research concerning decision making, judgment, problem solving, and expertise to create 37 hands-on exercises designed to enhance critical thinking values, knowledge, and skills which are integral to evidence-based practice. Attention is devoted to ignorance as well as knowledge – including ignorance promoted by special interests and ignorance that is self-inflicted through lack of knowledge about common biases and fallacies that impede informed decision making. The text is ideal for graduate as well as undergraduate courses in research and practice.

Night Call

Embracing Compassion and Hope in a Troubled World

Robert Wicks, Loyola Maryland University

- Lessons that are normally available only to helping and healing professionals, now offered to a wider audience
- Emphasis on the practice of ‘faithfulness’ as opposed to a focus on ‘success’ which demonstrates how to avoid unnecessary discouragement in reaching out to others
- Insight into how to face failure, which can determine whether one will burn out or actually have the opportunity to deepen and grow as an individual

Told through anecdotes, clinical observations, and pearls of wisdom, and drawing from broad literature in psychology, philosophy, religion, and spirituality, Wicks weaves together stories of pain, hope, healing, and strength to guide readers through the night. This text is the culmination of decades of experience of someone who trains the healers, and helps the helpers. Consequently, it affords readers the opportunity to learn the strategies that professional helpers, first responders, ministers, emergency workers, and soldiers have learned to use in dealing with loss, pain, trauma, and grief.

Smart Decarceration
Achieving Criminal Justice Transformation in the 21st Century
Edited by Matthew Epperson, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, and Carrie Pettus-Davis, Brown School of Social Work, Washington University St. Louis

- Timeliness in the context of the United States reaching a saturation point with mass incarceration, coupled with increased political and moral will to propel an era of decarceration
- Features representativeness of a broad range of perspectives
- Proposes an array of ideas through the entire criminal justice system

Smart Decarceration is a forward-thinking, practical volume that provides concrete strategies for an era of decarceration. This timely work consists of chapters written from multiple perspectives and disciplines including scholars, practitioners, and persons with incarceration histories. The text grapples with tough questions and builds a foundation for the decarceration field.

Bullying Scars
The Impact on Adult Life and Relationships
Ellen Walser deLara, School of Social Work, Syracuse University

When we are bullied, we experience anxiety, stress, relationship strain, depression, and in persistent and severe cases, suicidal ideation that can lead to attempts or violent behavior against the bullies themselves or others. But what about the lasting effects?

Someone To Talk To
Mario Luis Small, Department of Sociology, Harvard University

Someone To Talk To reveals the often counter-intuitive nature of social support, showing that Americans often take pains to avoid close friends and family – their ‘strong ties’ – when deciding on whom to rely. In contrast, they often confide in ‘weak ties,’ as the need for understanding or empathy trumps their fear of misplaced trust. Amid a growing wave of big data and large-scale network analysis, Mario L. Small returns to the basic questions of who we connect with, how, and why, unpacking decades of conventional wisdom on how we should think about and analyze social networks.

Religion and Intimate Partner Violence

Understanding the Challenges and Proposing Solutions

Nancy Nason-Clark and Barbara Fisher-Townsend, both at University of New Brunswick, and Catherine Holtmann, University of Saskatchewan, and Stephen McMullin, Acadia University

- Offers practical solutions for religious leaders and professionals to facilitate safety and healing of religious survivors of IPV based on empirical evidence
- Features empirical research on the challenges and potential solutions of holding religious men who are abusive in relationships accountable to stop their violent behavior
- Identifies how various professionals can be part of the solution or be part of the problem in the work of a coordinated community response to IPV in religious clients

Grounded in data and enriched with narratives of abused women, abusive men, and those who walk alongside them, Religion and Intimate Partner Violence examines how lived religion both helps and hinders the journey towards justice, accountability, healing, and wholeness for women and men caught in the web of abuse.

Marital Rape

Consent, Marriage, and Social Change in Global Context

Edited by Kersti Yllö and M. Gabriela Torres, both at Wheaton College

Marital Rape is the first book to examine rape in marriage as a global problem affecting millions of women. While legal and cultural conceptions of marital rape vary widely – from criminal assault to wifely duty – the authors document that forced sex undermines the physical and psychological well-being of women in all cultures.

Failure to Flourish

How Law Undermines Family Relationships

Clare Huntington, Fordham University School of Law

Failure to Flourish contends that we must re-orient the legal system to help families avoid crises and, when conflicts arise, intervene in a manner that heals relationships. To understand how wrong our family law system has gone and what we need to repair it, Failure to Flourish takes us from ancient Greece to cutting-edge psychological research, and from the chaotic corridors of local family courts to a quiet revolution under way in how services are provided to families in need.

Children, Families and Communities, fifth edition is focused on child development within the Australian context and the factors that influence children’s development. These include the effects of ability, ethnicity, family, school, neighbourhood (including rural, urban and remote communities) and state interventions and policies.

The structure of the book continues to reflect the contextual layers described in Bronfenbrenner’s bioecological model. In this edition, all of the individual chapters have been reconceptualised and rewritten to reflect current research evidence and theory development.

Innovative Skills to Support Well-Being and Resiliency in Youth
Nicole Nicotera and Julie Anne Laser-Maira, both at University of Denver

Innovative Skills to Support Well-Being and Resiliency in Youth emphasizes the step-by-step procedures readers will need to implement innovative techniques and skills that are evidence-based and emphasize well-being and resilience in youth. The skills-based approach of the text aims to demystify what one actually does in session with youth by moving toward sessions that engage youth in action, stimulating communication and change. In addition, it advocates for practice interventions that engage and empower youth to be in charge of their personal well-being, and in the healing process to promote resiliency. By doing so, youth can take an active role in their own healthy functioning.

The Hidden Among the Hidden

African-American Elder Male Caregivers

Helen K. Black, University of Maryland - Baltimore County, John T. Groce, Widener University School of Social Work, and Charles E. Harmon, Mature Africans Learning from Each Other (M.A.L.E.)

- Covers a minimally researched area on African-American men as caregivers
- Features findings based on bottom-up research
- Takes a holistic view of the caregiver (i.e. does not consign him to a category while eliciting his opinions on matters regarding caregiving that are critical to him, giving voice to his narrative, and considering him the expert on his life and his caregiving)

What are the experiences of African-American elder male caregivers? Based on research with twelve African-American caregivers born in the first half of the 20th century, this book captures the complexity and poignancy of the caregiving pilgrimage, and roots men’s caregiving narratives within the biographical and historical context of their lives.

Caring for a Living
_Migrant Women, Aging Citizens, and Italian Families_

Francesca Degiuli, Fairleigh Dickinson University

The world is aging at a great speed. While this is a remarkable achievement, aging also brings new challenges, among them a growing need for long-term care. _Caring for a Living_ specifically investigates Italy’s employment of home eldercare assistance, an arrangement whereby long term care services are bought in the market in the form of private and individualized assistance – predominantly female immigrants.

Yes I Can, (Sí, Yo Puedo)
An Empowerment Program for Immigrant Latina Women in Group Settings
Catherine Fuchsel, St. Catherine University and the University of St. Thomas

- Geared towards those who work with immigrant Latina women and their families and who want to provide psycho-educational groups in community-based agencies or social services programs nationally and internationally
- Targets immigrant Latinas who are not in crisis situations or in domestic violence-related agencies or shelters. However, the program manual/book can be used by mental health professionals who work in these types of settings
- Discusses financial gains and support in community-based agencies that have limited funding. By offering educational groups as opposed to individual therapy, community-based agencies can provide a service not previously offered before

The Sí, Yo Puedo (SYP) curriculum is an 11-week educational program, conducted in Spanish and offered in a group format. Sessions are structured with goals, objectives, in-class self-reflection drawing and writing exercises, and instructions for mental health professionals. The SYP program focuses on education of healthy relationships, domestic violence, and improvement of self-esteem.

Disability-Affirmative Therapy
A Case Formulation Template for Clients with Disabilities
Rhoda Olkin, California School of Professional Psychology, San Francisco

Disability-Affirmative Therapy (D-AT) helps clinicians put the disability of a client into proper focus, without making one of the usual mistakes associated with cross-cultural therapy: overinflating the role of the disability, or underestimating its profound effects. D-AT provides a template for evaluation – nine areas to be discussed with the client – that allows understanding of the client’s lifetime experiences with disability.

Phallacies
Historical Intersections of Disability and Masculinity
Edited by Kathleen M. Brian, Smithsonian Institution, and James W. Trent, Jr., Gordon College

- Addresses an under-explored topic that is applicable to the academic disciplines of history, gender studies, American studies, sociology, cultural studies, disability studies, social work, psychology, etc.
- Examines the intersections between masculinity and disability across the past 60 years
- Integrates material on several types of disabilities – psychiatric disabilities, blindness, physical disabilities, intellectual disability, and war-related disabilities

Phallacies: Historical Intersections of Disability and Masculinity is a collection of essays that focuses on disabled men who negotiate their masculinity as well as their disability. Essays include war-related disabilities, male hysteria, suicide clubs, mercy killings, and portraits of disabled men in literature and popular culture.

Mapping and Monitoring Bullying and Violence
Building a Safe School Climate

Ron Avi Astor, School of Social Work, Rossier School of Education, University of Southern California, and Rami Benbenishty, Bar Ilan University

- Includes examples of how monitoring can be used, suggests ways to structure survey instruments, and displays examples of school maps so readers can envision maps of their own schools
- Provides the variety of questions education professionals should ask, free resources for reference, and issues they should consider when designing a survey for their student population
- Includes some diagrams as well as charts and tables that readers can use as examples of ways to display and communicate the data to educators, parents, students, and community members

This guide provides professionals charged with reducing bullying and making schools safer with practical solutions for creating and implementing monitoring systems that use multiple sources of data. Including examples of how monitoring works, the authors advocate for an ongoing cycle that involves collecting information from multiple audiences about what is taking place in and around schools. Mapping, which gives school leaders, students, and staff members a visual record of safe and unsafe areas on the campus, is described along with other methods of gathering, analyzing, and sharing feedback.

Advocacy Practice for Social Justice
Third Edition
Richard Hoefer, University of Texas at Arlington

Current economic and social forces are creating a society with less equality, justice and opportunity for all but the privileged few. Social workers are called upon by their code of ethics to counteract these trends and actively work to achieve social justice. Hoefer’s empirically-based, step-by-step approach demonstrates how to integrate advocacy for social justice into everyday social work practice. The book shows through anecdotes, case studies, examples, and the author’s own personal experiences, exactly how advocacy can be conducted with successful outcomes. Each chapter builds upon the previous to provide a concise yet detailed blueprint for conducting successful advocacy.

Behind from the Start
How America’s War on the Poor is Harming Our Most Vulnerable Children
Lenette Lessing, Wheelock College

- Connects the dots between our public and political discourse and our public policies, and examines their effects on poor young children
- Takes liberal and conservative politicians and pundits to task in equal measure
- Challenges the conventional wisdom that school reform and/or universal preschool have the capacity to significantly reduce the achievement gap between poor and non-poor children

Today there are nearly six million children under the age of 5 living in poverty in the world’s richest country. Behind from the Start examines what lies behind the stubbornly high rate of poverty among young children in the U.S. and its consequences. It explains the multiple ways in which early-life poverty robs millions of children of a promising future and calls for dramatic changes in how we approach this problem.

Poverty, Wealth, and Well-Being Experiencing Penia in Democratic Athens
Claire Taylor, University of Wisconsin-Madison

In fifth- and fourth-century BCE Athens ‘poverty’ encompassed not only destitution, but also the need to work for a living. This volume considers what it meant to be poor in this sense, arguing that it should be understood not just as an economic condition, but also in terms of social relations, capabilities, and well-being.

Ghettos, Tramps, and Welfare Queens

Down and Out on the Silver Screen

Stephen Pimpare, Carsey School of Public Policy, University of New Hampshire at Durham

- Examines (and features screenshots from) nearly 300 films released between 1902 and 2014
- First serious effort to examine poverty and homeless in film, a consistently prevalent – and heretofore unaddressed – phenomenon in American film
- Provides answers to major questions for filmmakers, filmgoers, and policymakers

Ghettos, Tramps, and Welfare Queens offers a never-before-seen perspective on Hollywood as it shows how American movies have portrayed poor and homeless people from the silent era to today. It simultaneously provides a novel kind of guide to social policy, exploring how ideas about poor and homeless people have been reflected in popular culture and evaluating those images against the historical and contemporary reality.

Housing First
Ending Homelessness, Transforming Systems, and Changing Lives
Deborah K. Padgett, and Benjamin F. Henwood, both at Silver School of Social Work, and Sam J. Tsemberis, Pathways to Housing, Inc., New York City

This book provides a unique portrayal of Housing First as a ‘paradigm shift’ in homeless services. Since 1992, this approach has spread nationally and internationally, changing systems and reversing the usual continuum of care. The success of Housing First has few parallels in social and human services.

The Open Door
Homelessness and Severe Mental Illness in the Era of Community Treatment
Carol L. M. Caton, Columbia University

- Provides a blueprint for ending homelessness among the most vulnerable people in the streets and shelters across America
- Details what works to end homelessness and where greater effort is needed to help people with mental illness achieve lasting housing stability and a productive life in the community
- Includes a carefully documented, in-depth account of the ‘state of the science’ in homelessness among people with severe mental illness

The Open Door provides a comprehensive, carefully documented ‘state of the science’ on homelessness and mental illness. The book reviews the effectiveness of service and housing interventions targeted at this constituency, and discusses efforts to bring evidence-based programs to scale.

A Place Called Home
_The Social Dimensions of Homeownership_

Kim R. Manturuk, Center for Instructional Technology, Duke University, and Mark R. Lindblad and Roberto G. Quercia, both at Center for Community Capital, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

- This is the first book to give a comprehensive portrait of the many and varied social benefits of homeownership
- Every chapter addresses the challenge of selection bias and every empirical chapter has been peer-reviewed. In research about homeownership, the decision of whether to rent or own is not controlled for
- The authors use the findings to try to extend the benefits traditionally associated with homeownership to renters

_A Place Called Home_ explains that homeownership is associated with many positive and surprising non-financial outcomes, and also _how and why_ this is so. The book ultimately argues that homeownership is an important social tool that can improve the lives of low- and moderate-income people.

Out of Harm’s Way

Creating an Effective Child Welfare System

Richard Gelles, University of Pennsylvania, School of Social Policy and Practice

Despite efforts to create, revise, reform, and establish an effective child welfare system in the United States, the system continues to fail to ensure the safety and well-being of maltreated children. Out of Harm’s Way presents four specific changes that would lead to a more effective system; and unlike many other studies of this system, the changes recommended here are affordable, scalable, and proven.

Never Enough

Capitalism and the Progressive Spirit

Neil Gilbert, University of California at Berkeley

- Removes the veil of scientific authority that has obscured the prevailing assumptions about the severity and implications of poverty, inequality, and social mobility in the U.S., along with the presumed benefits of universal social policies
- Highlights the distortions of international comparisons on these issues and illustrates the significant variations in the definition and measurements of them by drawing a firm distinction between relative and absolute measures of poverty and social mobility

Capitalism and the Progressive Spirit challenges the prevailing assumptions about the decline of middle-class prosperity, opportunity, and material well-being in the United States. In a careful reading of the evidence and a critical analysis of its implications, Gilbert demonstrates the extent to which the customary progressive claims about the severity of poverty, inequality, social mobility and the benefits of universalism not only distort the empirical reality of modern life in an era of abundance but confound efforts to help those most in need.

Giving with a Thousand Hands

The Changing Face of Indian Philanthropy

Pushpa Sundar, Indian Centre for Philanthropy

Making an important distinction between charity and philanthropy, Giving with a Thousand Hands argues that while charity is alive and well in India, the country is short on philanthropy defined as altruistic giving on a large enough scale to bring about transformative social change.

The author in this book offers a vision for the future of Indian philanthropy, maintaining that it has a vital role to play in the country and needs to be encouraged through various measures.

NEW IN PAPERBACK
Change
What Really Leads to Lasting Personal Transformation
Jeffrey A. Kottler, California State University - Fullerton

What causes human beings to make a significant change in their lives, a transformative shift in thinking and actions? This fundamental question has preoccupied philosophers, priests, politicians, authors, and scholars for centuries. Today, psychologists and therapists who sit with clients session after session have a unique window into the human psyche, watching the rhythms of change unfold in front of them every day, and yet the process remains a mystery. Research has shown that even in cases of unqualified success, the client and the therapist often have wildly different views on what made it work. Taking that as his starting point, Jeffrey Kottler leads the reader on an exploration of human behavior, seeking to find out what it is that really makes a difference that can lead to transformative and lasting change.
