Welcome to our catalogue for 2019. You might be accessing this as an electronic file, or browsing it in hard copy, whichever it is we hope that it is informative and useful to you.

The following pages list our new publishing as well as recent backlist. Although the titles are presented here as paperbacks, the entirety of Oxford University Press's law list is available in a variety of formats.

At OUP we recognize that teaching methods, learning styles, and education spaces come in a variety of formats and the resources you choose to use should be flexible and adaptable enough to keep pace.

We can offer more content than any other publisher, which means the choice of what to select for your teaching can seem challenging, but our team of specialist law representatives know the list inside out, and are happy to help you select the best content using the right delivery method for your courses (see back page for their details).

You might be interested in finding out about the online resources that accompany most textbooks (page 22), adopting digital textbooks (page 13), creating your own customised textbooks in any format (page 20), or subscribing to Law Trove.

We're keen to help and look forward to hearing from you and we hope you'll agree to hear more from us by signing up to receive emails at www.oup.com/academic/subscribe

Preparing for the introduction of the SQE continues to dominate our to-do list. We remain regularly in touch with the SRA, academics, course providers, as well as law firms and have been conducting research with them for some time to inform and shape our publishing plans.

OUP remains the only publisher to offer legal resources that take a student from an undergraduate (or equivalent) course to their professional career and beyond. We remain committed to that and will be expanding our law list to cater for the changes brought about by the SQE.

Our publishing plans involve developing texts designed to support SQE part 1, they will map closely to the SRA’s assessment specification.

To respond to the move to assessment by MCQ we will be producing an online bank of questions that mirror the style and rigour of the assessment.

In addition, we are commissioning a new set of textbooks which respond to the more practical nature of teaching which you have told us will start permeating your courses as the SQE is introduced.

We’ll keep you updated with our plans, and share the findings of our ongoing research. If you are involved with SQE preparation and would like to get in touch with feedback, suggestions, or an informal chat please contact Angela using the details opposite.

At Oxford University Press we are committed to using our resources and expertise to work with law schools to provide the highest-quality content on the platforms and in the formats that best suit the requirements of the teacher, the student, and the learning environment.

Most of our textbooks have accompanying online resources written by (or in conjunction with) the author; they are designed to enhance the learning experience, add value, and save you time. Visit www.oup-arc.com

Enhance your teaching and broaden their minds with Law Trove. Subscriptions to subject collections are available to individual students, or as an institutional purchase www.oxfordlawtrove.com

We're improving the experience of e-books all the time by adding interactive elements to support engagement and assessment. Most textbooks are compatible with the major platforms; VitalSource, Kortext and Bibliotech.

We offer a custom option that lets you tailor-make your textbook from a range of OUP resources. Choose to have it delivered in hard copy or electronic format (p. 20 for details).

There are a plethora of options available; and no doubt representatives from different platform providers will tell you why their solution is best. We believe your adoption decision should continue to be driven by quality of content, and best-match to your course. Please talk to your campus representative to discuss the options that will best suit you, and your students (see back page).

FREE ACCESS
We recognize that teaching can be distinctive and personal, and when that’s combined with topic content as varied as the English legal system it can be hard to find a textbook to suit your delivery.

OUP offers the broadest selection of legal systems and skills books. We also offer a customized option that allows you to tailor-make your own textbook (in hard copy or electronic format).

Pick the chapters you need from our range, put them in the order you want, and even add your own supplementary material as required.

We make the process of making a custom textbook as simple as possible. From the initial idea, through to getting stock to your students, you would be working with your usual campus representative.

Contact your campus representative to discuss how a customized option might suit you.

Handbooks in our A Practical Approach series provide the perfect bridge between legal studies and practice. Visit our website for more information.
At Oxford University Press we aim to provide you with a service that goes beyond textbooks, so you can stay up-to-date with publishing news and related developments, inspect new titles, and make use of our additional teaching resources.

Keep up-to-date with the latest in higher education law from OUP with our e-newsletters. Visit www.oup.com/academic/subscribe to sign up or change your preferences.

Lecturers can order free inspection copies of our law textbooks from our website www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk.

Our full list of backlist titles is available to view on our website where you can browse tables of contents and read sample chapters. Visit www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk.

Let your local campus representative guide you through our extensive list of books and resources to help you make the right decisions for your teaching needs. See back page for contact details.

To find out more about other resources we provide, visit www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk.
Oxford University Press is committed to supporting legal education through an extensive programme of goodwill initiatives. A continuing investment into law specific initiatives — from subject prizes, to nationwide competitions and awards — enables us to give something back to the academic community and students.

The Law Teacher of the Year award is the only national award to recognize and reward great teaching. Follow the progress of the 2019 award online.

Our Celebrating Excellence in Law Teaching conference provides a forum for law teachers to come together to discuss best practice, share ideas, and showcase innovation. Join us on 27 June 2019 at Cheltenham Racecourse. Book your place online.

With an original moot problem for every round, and a prize money pot of over £2,000, the OUP & ICCA National Mooting Competition brings together mooters from law schools across the UK.

Reward your most deserving students with the Oxford University Press Law Prize; over £17,000 is given back to students throughout Europe each year through the law prize.

Our law student panellists from a diverse range of institutions provide invaluable feedback and contributions, which make a real difference to our law publishing.

To find out more about our programme of goodwill initiatives, visit our website: www.oxfordtextbooks.co.uk/law/goodwill
Our campus support

Oxford University Press has a team of dedicated representatives who visit institutions across Europe.

The team are committed to providing a high level of service and support. In fact we don’t believe you’ll receive a better level of ongoing support from any other publisher.

Our extensive selection of textbooks, casebooks, statute books, revision guides and online resources offers an unmatched breadth and depth of learning materials.

Contact your representative at any time and find out for yourself how they can help you deliver your teaching.
