Amy the Hedgehog Girl
Writing Composition

A storyboard is a way of planning used by film makers.

As well as writing the script, which contains all the words the different characters speak, the film makers also make a series of sketches showing, roughly, what the film will look like. This is the storyboard.

Look at page 14. If you cover up the words and just look at the picture you can guess what is happening. It is rather like part of a storyboard.

You can see from the picture that Mr Peck is talking to Mrs Harris and he is looking quite cross. Amy is giggling and seems to know something that they don’t know.

When you are planning to write a story it can be helpful to make a simple storyboard. You can use it as a way of jotting down the most important parts of the story so that when you start writing you can follow your ideas through to the end.

Use the blank storyboard below to sketch out the main scenes of a story called Something Lives in My Cupboard.
